In the Gold Business. Farmers Still Strike. About Japan? Nothing. Mr. Farley's Flush.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN THE language of Chicago's ancient Midway:

"We are in the water now."

The government today will start in the gold business, fix prices, and begin buying gold.

It should not be made too hard for the little miner to sell his gold when he gets any. Don't make him sign a hundred affidavits as to where he found it, how he happened to get it.

Big mining companies can fill out numerous forms. The little placer miner, painfully washing out his few nuggets, sells his gold one ounce at a time. Give him a chance to sell it without too many questions.

When he brings it in the nugget form, you may be sure he hasn't imported it from Africa, although, even so, it is as well to watch for bootlegging.

IF GOLD goes up to forty dollars an ounce, which seems probable, and speculation in gold becomes the next big United States "racket," there is no knowing what will be done to poor, innocent Uncle Sam.

THE FARMERS' strike continues. 2,000 in Illinois join the movement "to boost prices." Trucks taking food to cities are stopped, pickets interfering with food transportation are active in Iowa.

Everybody sympathizes with the effort of farmers to better their condition and every farmer has a right to do as he pleases, as long as he doesn't interfere with other farmers. If he does interfere and succeeds in making food scarce, the government of the United States will interfere with him.

The city woman, with children, is not responsible for low prices and should not, arbitrarily, be deprived of food.

THE MILLIONS idle and dissatisfied would not be justified in shooting up the farmers or otherwise interfering with their comfort or safety.

If the nation hasn't intelligence enough to protect itself with the ballot, it won't be able to do so with the shotgun, the strike or the boycott.

AN IMPORTANT news association dispatch from Moscow says Litvinoff, when he comes to talk to President Roosevelt about recognition of Russia, will also talk about Japan and what the United States will do if Japan attacks Russia. It is to be hoped President Roosevelt will say:

"The United States will do about Japan, if it attacks Russia, just what it will do about France or Germany, if one attacks the other. That is to say, it will do nothing, and wish the best of luck to both sides."

PLAYING POKER in a flying machine, 3,200 feet up in the air, Postmaster General Farley drew one card and completed a "king high straight flush." If you know what that is, you know it is a good omen for the administration. Mr. Farley, who doesn't drink, smoke, talk or get excited, laid the hand down and drew in the pot, saying:

ROBERT MANTELL, son of the famous Shakespearean actor, killed himself yesterday, "grieving over the failure of his own stage career."

Rarely does the son inherit the father's talent. The son of Wagner was no great musician. Socrates, Plato and Aristotle in philosophy, Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon in war, Galileo, Keppler, Newton in astronomy, left no great sons. You can count on five fingers the great sons of great men.

Pitt and his father, Lord Chatham, buried in the same grave in Westminster Abbey. Filippo Lippi and Filippino Lippi, father and son, both great artists, are among the few "father and son" successful combinations. What others can you mention?

IN HOLLYWOOD yesterday, the son of the famous Caruso was engaged to sing a leading role. Students of eugenics who think you can breed men as racehorses and greyhounds are bred, will be interested in that experiment.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is again troubled with a cold. Important and disquieting news for the country.

Nothing is more dangerous than what is carelessly called "the common cold." It is the forerunner of pneumonia in many cases, foundation of innumerable diseases, weakening the system.

Wise men of Johns Hopkins should tell the President how to avoid such colds. He should take their advice, for his health means a great deal to this country.

He will be told that he must eat carefully, attend to certain simple rules, go to bed and get up at regular hours, especially "go to bed," adopt a scientifically arranged diet with the required assortment of vitamins; in short, treat himself at least as well as soldiers in the Army are treated.

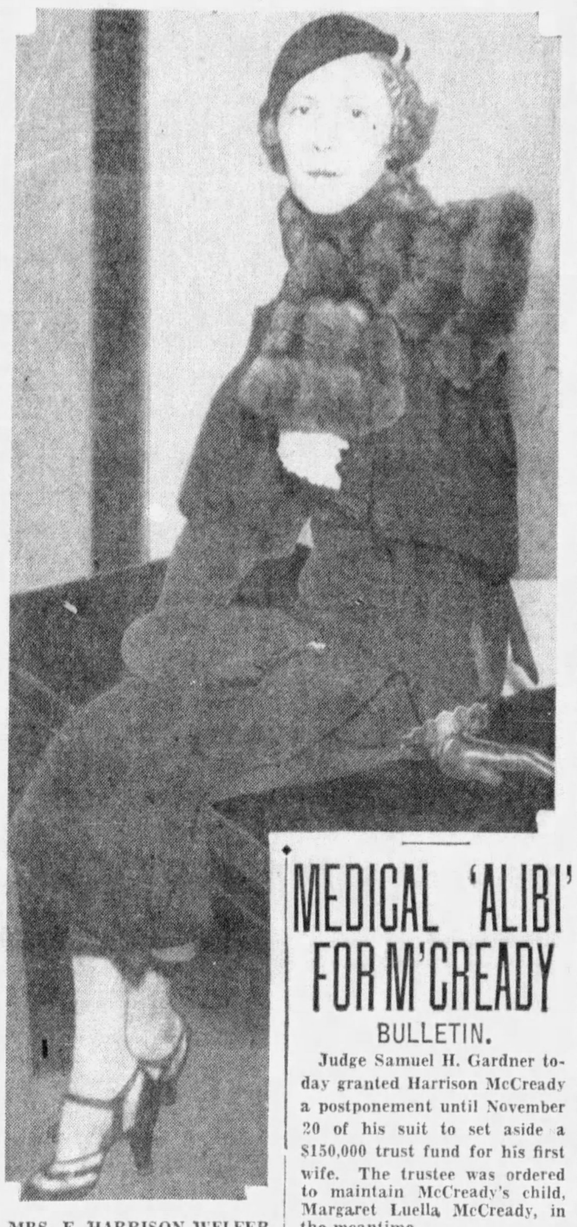
Playboy's Hangover Fog Very Heavy, Court Told



MRS. F. HARRISON WELFER

SNOW FLURRIES FALL HERE

Fluffy white flakes fluttered from a partly cloudy sky today to give Pittsburgh its first glimpse of snow of the fall season.

Chrysanthemums and other hardy autumn flowers, nurtured by a mild October, felt the first touch of winter here, as well as in virtually the entire eastern half of the country.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said the snow would be placed on the weather bureau books as a "trace."

The mercury fell to 37 degrees early today as the skies were swept clear by a howling gale that reached 32 miles an hour last night. The wind averted a heavy frost.

Tonight the forecaster predicted the temperature would drop to around the freezing mark with heavy frost. In outlying districts the mercury will fall to between 25 and 30. Fair weather with rising temperature is predicted for tomorrow.

Brotzman advised draining of automobile radiators if the cars were parked outdoors for any length of time.

Snow flurries were reported at Johnstown, Pa., and Olean, N. Y. today, while at Duluth, Minn. snow piled up to a depth of 12 inches, the heaviest at this season in 47 years.

The Adirondacks, around Saranac Lake, N. Y., lay under a two-inch blanket of white. Roses bloomed at Pittsfield, Mass., as snow fell in the Berkshires, and strawberry blossoms were reported in other parts of the Bay state.

Billie Dove Ill From Pleurisy

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Billie Dove, screen actress, was reported seriously ill from pleurisy at her home today. Only her husband, Robert Kenaston, and her mother, have been permitted to visit her.

MEDICAL 'ALIBI' FOR M'CREADY

Judge Samuel H. Gardner today granted Harrison McCready a postponement until November 20 of his suit to set aside a $150,000 trust fund for his first wife. The trustee was ordered to maintain McCready's child, Margaret Luella McCready, in the meantime.

Playboy Harrison McCready has a hangover so heavy it amounts to mental defficiency, his counsel told Judge Samuel H. Gardner today.

That, said the counsel, Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, was why his client could not appear in person to ask a postponemenet on his suit to set aside a $150,000 trust fund created for his first wife, now Mrs. F. H. Welfer.

Margiotti called Dr. E. G. Ignelzi, of the West Penn Hospital staff, to support his statements. McCready is now in the West Penn Hospital, where he has been nine times within the last three months.

FOUR QUARTS A DAY

Dr. Ignelzi said the playboy's brain had been affected by his bibulous habits. He added:

"He has what laymen call a 'wet brain.'

"For the last three years he has been consuming two, three and sometimes four quarts of whisky a day.

Court Orders Opening Of Bank Box in Ransom Hunt

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Police presented a court order today to a Broadway branch of the National City Bank which permitted them to examine the contents of a safety deposit box owned by John Gorch, who is being questioned in Boston in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

International News Service.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—While police sought the writer of the "Judas letter" which betrayed John Gorch, 37, alleged confidence man and newest Lindbergh case suspect, into their hands, investigators representing four law enforcement agencies today sought to establish any possible connection between him and the $50,000 ransom money.

Meanwhile, following a conference at police headquarters, Lieut. James Finn, of the New York police, and Corp. William Horn, of the New Jersey state police, left for an unannounced destination with Inspector William Bonner and Sergt. Alfred Tiernan, of Boston, to follow up a new lead.

The anonymous letter was so accurate regarding Gorch's alleged criminal record, that officials felt the writer might be correct in linking Gorch with the Lindbergh case. Gorch previously had been questioned but was exonerated.

DEPOSIT BOX LOCATED

Gorch told Lieut. Finn, Corp. Horn, two Boston detectives, and a Department of Justice agent where his safety deposit box was located, but denied them authority to examine its contents.

ROAD JOBS SEEK 20,000 MEN

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Highway construction in Pennsylvania is creating jobs more rapidly than they can be filled, with the result that the federal re-employment service is looking for 20,000 skilled workers needed on projects employing a total of 50,000 persons.

The federal service today issued a hurry call for pressure distributor, steam shovel, roller, tractor, grader, power grader and "bulldozer" operators. Truck drivers, too, were listed among those whom the state bureau, through Ernest Kelley, assistant director, urged to report and register at once at county re-employment offices.

The State Highway Department, which announced 50,000 men will be at work on roads by November 1, added that the total will be increased to 60,000 by the end of the year.

U. S. BIDS UP PRICE OF GOLD

Government Plan to Raise Commodity Levels Launched

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's unprecedented plan for controlling the American value of gold in the expectation of raising commodity prices was put in operation today with an offer to purchase newly-mined gold at $31.36 an ounce, 27 cents higher than the day's opening quotations on world markets.

The price set was an increase of $1.56 cents an ounce over the world price of yesterday as figured and announced at the Treasury.

ROOSEVELT PLEASED

In quarters familiar with his mind, President Roosevelt was reported today to be gratified with the public response to his gold move. As to Wall Street reaction, it was remarked that he will keep his future intentions to himself.

This authoritative comment apparently was evoked by inquiries rising from New York as to what was to come.

His informal reply was that he was working for an objective and that, while New York would probably like to have a schedule of 60 days or a year ahead, it would not be given.

Announcing the price, Jesse H. Jones, Reconstruction Finance Corporation chairman, said the gleaming metal would be paid for in the corporation's 90-day debentures, which, he added, could be easily converted into cash.

Government fiscal experts were working out a plan whereby the debentures can be discounted at a rate which will bring their

The Price Problem

By JULIUS G. BERENS

THE American debt problem is not different from that confronting every country that engaged actively in the World War.

Every belligerent excepting England and the United States has officially devalued its monetary unit.

It is inevitable that the United States and England follow these other countries.

The direct intention of devaluation, of course, is to lessen the burden of debt.

We have already witnessed the results of a cheaper gold dollar on commodity prices. Commodities have recovered vigorously from their lowest prices this year.

But they are not yet high enough.

If prices were at levels prevailing when debts were contracted, there would be no unfair burden for debtors.

But commodity prices this year dropped to the lowest levels in decades; for some staples, prices were the lowest in recorded history.

When the dollar shrinks in gold value, prices advance sharply.

This has been the nation's experience ever since we suspended the gold standard.

The desire of devaluation advocates is to advance commodity prices to the levels which will allow debt repayment and also allow producers and business generally to operate at a profit.

Devaluation is desired to prevent prices from remaining at present low levels or sinking back to the dismal levels which would revive conditions which forced the national banking moratorium and built up an ever-growing army of unemployed.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT apparently sees that gold devalution of the dollar is essential. He shares the fear of a further extension of the backward movement in commodity prices.

History provides the background for such fear.

Each major war has brought an inevitable post-war boom in prices to fantastic heights. Each such boom has been immediately followed by such violent decline in prices as to throw the whole capitalistic system out of balance.

It was thus after the War of 1812.

It was thus after the Civil War.

However, believe it or not, the absolute low point of the post-Civil War collapse was not reached until 1896—FOR 35 YEARS PRICES TENDED LOWER.

The lowest point of the post-War of 1812 period was not reached until 1843—for 29 years prices tended lower.

In between each period, of course, there were ups and downs in price, but the major trends were downward, for DECADES.

THE PRESENT-DAY BREAK in commodity prices commenced in 1929 and continued for FOUR YEARS.

For several months after President Roosevelt's inauguration, prices advanced steadily. Then they dropped, right up to the time of his address to the nation Sunday evening. The nation had begun to doubt whether the upturn previously witnessed was a definite trend, or merely a flash in the pan.

In the post-Civil War period there also developed a sharp rise which was hailed as the end of the long price decline, but which proved only an intermediate rally in an extended downward movement.

The country after that war also was burdened with enormous debts.

Lacking assistance from a rising commodity price trend, debtors had no recourse but to surrender to bankruptcy.

Did the creditor gain from such debacles?

Did the country gain from an era of reckless price depreciation, accompanied by wholesale bankruptcy?

Would it not have been more sensible to have arranged a more orderly, relatively, readjustment of the whole debt structure at one stroke?

A SIMILAR QUESTION confronts President Roosevelt and the nation today.

It will require definite action by the President and his administration to convince the nation that they are sincere in their reiterated desires that higher prices be achieved. Mr. Roosevelt in his

RAILROADER FIRES ON AUTO

Conway Woman Near Death After Early Morning Tryst

James Crawford, 50 found the house empty. So he sat down and awaited the return of his wife, Hilda, 13 years his junior.

At 3 a. m. a car pulled up outside the house.

The husband fired a .38-caliber pistol at the speeding car, according to the state police.

The wife jumped in front of him, police said.

A bullet struck her in the abdomen. She was rushed to Rochester General Hospital, where, Private Harold Muntie, of the state police, said, she moaned:

"He didn't mean to do it."

She lapsed into unconsciousness just as she was asked who was in the car. Her condition is serious.

Crawford was placed in the New Brighton Jail. He was quoted as saying his wife had jumped into the line of fire.

12 Women Award Widow $6,000 in Mate's Death

Twelve women sat in the jury box in Common Pleas Court—a rare sight.

Two attorneys on opposite sides of the table in front of the Judge's dias, listened attentively.

Mrs. Anna Gertrude Beam, in the witness stand, was telling the 12 women jurors of her husband, Floyd B. Beam, 47, being struck by an automobile on the Franks-town road, near Standard street, in April, 1931; of his death four days later from the injuries.

She told of his leaving her with nine children, the youngest now 3 and the oldest 21, and why she was suing W. J. Swoger, of Verona road, for $50,000 damages.

The jury of women heard the testimony, and the plea of the woman's attorney, Donald L. Hankey. They retired, to discuss the matter.

This morning a sealed verdict was submitted as a result of their deliberations. The verdict granted Mrs. Beam $6,000.

STORES' CODE CARRIES PRICE 'JOKER'

Sales at Cost Plus 10 Pct. Assured, Says Johnson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—NRA today was empowered to initiate any investigations necessary to protect Blue Eagle industries from cheap foreign imports.

President Roosevelt granted the authority in a special order. Hugh S. Johnson now may investigate upon complaint, or his own motion, any report that foreign goods are gaining the domestic market by underselling products of codified American businesses.

Tariff boosts, quota restrictions even embargoes, were at the command of the administration if necessary to protect domestic producers. But first must come the NRA's investigation, then a tariff commission investigation and finally, the President's own determination of action needed to control foreign competition.

FEW COMPLAINTS

Johnson said complaints were surprisingly few.

The tariff order was issued as American newsprint paper producers met with Canadian and European paper men to attempt to work out a voluntary price agreement which would safeguard the Americans in assuming the higher costs imposed by code terms.

While the import question came to the fore Johnson was telling newsmen that the price control provision of the retail code, newly approved by the President, had been misinterpreted, and that it would almost certainly result in establishing a cost plus 10 per cent minimum for all stores.

This statement followed close upon appointment of the trade authority of three members which will assist the NRA executive to fix the amount of makeup, left open by the code. Named were Louis Kirstein, Boston merchant and member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board; Dr. Leo Wolman and Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairman of the Labor and Consumer Boards. Mrs. Rumsey had opposed inclusion of the 10 per cent provision in the code.

ANSWERS CRITICS

The farm opposition, he said, was not responsible for pulling the industrial control program out of the small towns. Actually the step had been decided upon two weeks ago and it was coincidence that some farm spokesmen made demands which were in line with the plan. The reason for pulling out, he said, was that 90 per cent of enforcement difficulties came from the small towns where merchants could not pay the code wages. Retail trade heads themselves, he argued, had wanted this step taken.

A decision sought by labor on tentative plans within NRA to keep wages of construction industries down for a year as an inducement to capital to stimulate building, was postponed today when deputies reported the master construction code not yet ready for submission to Johnson.

It developed that the "stepup plan" by which, after being held low for a year, wages would be raised by a definite percentage with a subsequent increase later, had not been written into the general code.

The code however does propose a minimum wage level of 40 cents an hour except where by local agreement the wage is set higher. In this way the wages of all skilled workers would be left to arbitration.

FARM REVOLT EFFECTS FELT

International News Service

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 25.—First real efforts of the national farm strike began to be felt today as reports of violence picketing and food embargoes seeped in from many important agricultural centers of the Midwest.

The most significant evidence of the extent of the farmers' revolt, however, was seen in halp curtailment of hog, sheep and cattle shipments to the Chicago stock yards. Not since last March have supplies been reported so light.

A week ago cattle receipts numbered 28,900; yesterday receipts were 22,000. Hogs a week ago numbered 331,500 as against 20,000 yesterday, and the most important drop of all was in shipments of sheep, 18,000 yesterday as against 25,000 a week ago.

DENY IMMUNITY IN VOTE CASE

No immunity bath was given Sam Mattes, real estate clerk in the County Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, one of the defendants in congressional election vote cases, because he testified before the federal grand jury.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker yesterday handed down an opinion in which he overruled a plea in abatement filed in behalf of Mattes, who had been subpenaed and testified before the grand jury. The court held he gave no testimony tending to incriminate himself; that he testified willingly and in no manner objected to testify on account of fear of self incrimination.

Named in the same indictment with Mattes were several members of election board of the Eighth District, Third Ward. There are still pending before the court demurrers and petitions for bills of particulars filed in behalf of Alderman John J. Verona and John Fugassi, member of the Board of Mercantile Appraisers, who are also defendants in indictments handed down by the grand jury that conducted the probe of alleged vote cheating in the Congressional elections.

Farmers Indicted For Dumping Milk

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Oct. 25.—(INS.)—Twenty-three farmers charged with participating in the ambuscades and dumping of milk that took place on the state roads of this section in August during the milk strike, were indicted today by the Ontario County grand jury.

The report of the grand jury to Justice B. B. Cunningham in Supreme Court recommended leniency. The defendants are all residents of Ontario and Wayne counties. They will be tried within a few weeks in Supreme Court here.

Roosevelt May Ban Auto 'Merit Clause'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt by an executive order may remove the "merit" clause from the automobile code as result of his official notice to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. radio speech said, referring to the objective of higher prices being obtained:

"If we cannot do this one way, we will do it another. Do it we will."

Dollar devaluation is one of the surest, tried means of accomplishing higher prices.

President Roosevelt promised the nation that he would seek higher commodity prices by operating in the gold markets of the world. He means, in effect, that he will attempt devaluation of the dollar in gold.

He should proceed courageously in this undertaking.

He can do much to solve the situation by exercising the power Congress conferred upon him to devaluate the dollar 50 per cent.

COLEMAN SEES NRA FAILURE

William H. Coleman, Republican county chairman, at a meeting in the Republican headquarters in the William Penn Hotel last night criticized President Roosevelt and the Democratic party. He said:

"The NRA is wrong and never will succeed. The first ones to destroy it will be the Democrats themselves."

LEBRUN PICKS NEW PREMIER

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Senator Albert Sarraut today was asked by President Albert Lebrun to form a cabinet and agreed to undertake the task.

The cabinet would replace that of former Premier Edouard Daladier, which fell this week after heated debate in the Chamber of Deputies over the government leader's plans to balance the budget and protect the franc through various new taxes and governmental economies.

PRICE CUTTING LAID TO TRUCK COAL MINES

NRA Prepared to Act On Violations of Code Rules

This announcement has been made by Frank Hawes, deputy coal administrator, at Washington.

The minimum prices for the rail mines in this district were approved October 16. Since that time it is reported that a number of small mines have been selling at lower prices, and that the rail mines have found domestic business seriously interfered with as a result.

FINE PROVIDED

Just what action might be taken by NRA authority to enforce the price scale was not disclosed, but it is reported at the offices of the Code Authority for this district that there is a fine of $500 a day provided for violations.

It is known that operators who are members of the code authority here are aroused over what they believe is an attempt to "chisel" prices. The small mines have not been the only offenders in this respect, operators say.

The price code as adopted by the rail mines which Washington now says governs the truck mines, too, sets up prices which are in some instances 60 to 70 per cent higher than formerly.

UNIFORM PRICE

Recently an attempt was made to bring many of the smaller mines under a separate list of prices, but this plan was rejected by NRA officials at Washington until more study can be given to prices.

The schedule approved for the rail mines in the Panhandle district includes a base run of mine price of $1.80 to $1.90 per ton, and ranges from $1.35 a ton for slack to $2.60 a ton for eight-inch lump.

The price is determined by the quality of the coal.

In the Youghiogheny-Westmoreland district, the base run of mine price is $1.80 to $2.20, and the range is from $1.50 for slack to $2.50 for eight-inch lump.

In the thick Freeport vein north of Pittsburgh, the base run of mine price is $1.90 to $2. The low price is $1.50 for slack and the top $2.25 for six-inch lump.

BOMBS BOOM IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Bombs boomed in Havana last night and early today.

Two exploded under trams, doing slight damage, and one was hurled into the headquarters of a Negro society.

Still another exploded in the hand of a Spaniard, Ruben Ibanez Betancourt, 24, injuring him seriously.

Betancourt said he found the bomb. Police claimed they had evidence he was a communist.

Meanwhile, the government asserted it had broken the back of oppositionist movements to precipitate a general strike. Government leaders characterized as "vague talk" reports of a contemplated compromise plan for a parliamentary government.

Indicating it would continue to raid the headquarters of suspected enemies, the government conducted two raids during the night, which resulted in three arrests.

The commercial strike, which crippled the city yesterday, was terminated at midnight.

CAPTIVE MINES TO TAKE STAND ON STRIKE

Roosevelt Impatient, Gets Pledge of Early Action

to reach an agreement will be followed by action in Washington.

Frick Strikers Carry Charges to Roosevelt

Two Fayette County mine union leaders are en route to see President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today.

They are William Hynes, president of District No. 4, United Mine Workers, and Martin Ryan, president of the Grindstone local.

They left before dawn armed with affidavits. Some of them are said to explain bombings and other acts of terrorism in the captive coal mine strike; by other records they hope to convince the President of a connection between the H. C. Frick Coke Company and the Independent Brotherhood Union.

Meanwhile there continued the 10-day impasse in the negotiations between the heads of the steel corporations, which own the captive mines, and the union leaders.

And the unusual calm in the coke region indicated the miners on holiday were awaiting the swing of the pendulum—waiting its movement toward recognition of the union and peace, or renewal of the bitter warfare.

Every commercial mine in Western Pennsylvania equipped to work was working. Allison mine, in Fayette, and other mines where minor disturbances had kept the men out up to yesterday, were operating today. Pickets remained at the captive mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and other steel subsidiaries.

Appointment of regional coal labor boards will be completed in a few days, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, announced in Washington, the Associated Press stated.

The industry's code provides for five regional boards, each to have representatives of miners, operators and the President. It was previously indicated that setting up of the boards awaited settlement of the strikes in the various regions.

MINERS RALLY

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, and other union officers addressed 5,000 captive miners from the Greene, Washington and Fayette fields yesterday at Cokeburg.

The Bethlehem Mining Corporation, whose representatives in negotiations with the President were Charles M. Schwab and Eugene G. Grace, was condemned by the speakers, who charged the corporation deliberately violated the government truce by refusing to recognize union checkweighmen and mine committees.

A resolution pledging the men to remain idle until the President decides the captive mine strike, to support the government and the United Mine Workers 100 per cent, was passed.

Other speakers besides Fagan were B. J. Damich, international organizer; John O'Leary, international board member, and Andy Demeter, president of the Cokeburg local.

MISS ELEANOR KIRMEYER, 18

GIRL BRANDED, MOTHER HELD

And Mrs. Dorothy Kirmeyer, 35, of Homestead avenue, Homestead Park, today was held for court, accused of burning the daughter, Eleanor Kirmeyer, 18, with a hot iron.

Eleanor explained that she had bought the soap for her own use. Her stepmother was ironing when she discovered that the older woman had used the soap, she said. An argument ensued.

She fled to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Eleanor Felecety, in Coal Valley, aided by Humane Society officials.

The stepmother was held for court on a charge of aggravated assault and battery at a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace John W. Watson, of Elizabeth.

The girl testified at the hearing that the stepmother placed the hot iron on her arm and dragged it from the wrist to the elbow after an argument.

holders the full purchase price for their gold.

PROCEDURE CHANGED

In offering the debentures, unsecured bonds of the Reconstruction Corporation, the usual RFC procedure was changed.

The transactions will be the first time that such debentures have been permitted to go to the general public.

Heretofore, the RFC has obtained cash for its operations by selling the debentutres to the Treasury.

Mr. Roosevelt has received more than 2,000 telegrams of comment on his Sunday speech. It was stated at the White House that two telegrams on the monetary phase of the speech were not favorable. One was from a man in New England, who said:

"Don't like your speech. Don't understand it."

One from the West said:

CUBAN BONDS UNLOADED ON PUBLIC

Banks Paid Off First, Pecora Inquiry Reveals

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Evidence was presented to Senate investigators today that, faced with financial difficulties in Cuba in 1930, the Chase National Bank sold $40,000,000 in bonds to the public to retire the island republic's obligations to the bank.

This followed an earlier statement by Chase Bank officials before the Senate Stock Market Committee that in retiring $50,000,000 in Cuban serial certificates, bankers who held $30,000,000 worth were paid off before the public, which held the remainder, although the banks' holdings had later maturity dates.

Proceeds of the bond issue were used to retire almost $40,000,000 of Cuban obligations held by the bankers.

ADDITIONAL LOAN

At the same time, the bankers advanced another credit to Cuba of $20,000,000 in return for which the bankers got an option on an additional $40,000,000 bond issue.

The securities held by the bankers included the $30,000,000 of serial certificates. Bankers involved were Chase, Blair & Co., Equitable Trust Company and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, of Chicago.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, called the negotiations a plan to "unload" on the public, but the banker said he believed the public would have bought the certificates even if informed of conditions in Cuba.

But under the plan finally adopted, Pecora said, "the one that paid the freight was the public."

FIGURES CHALLENGED

Investigators challenged figures by the Chase Bank in offering Cuban bonds to the public which showed Cuba's revenues exceeded expenditures.

Pecora asked:

"What proof did you have that the figures were correct?"

Morgan replied:

"Cuba is a sovereign government. Are we to go behind the Secretary of the Treasury's figures?"

Pecora countered:

"Then if the Secretary of Treasury of Cuba told you the moon was made of green cheese, you would believe him without further proof?"

Morgan replied:

"Certainly not."

WIGGIN YIELDS BANK PENSION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank, today voluntarily gave up his contract with that institution giving him retired pay of $100,000 a year tor life.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the committee which disclosed Wiggins' retired salary, gave out a letter from the banker to the board of directors of the bank giving up the contract because of public criticism.

The letter follows:

"Gentlemen:

"At the time of the agreement to pay me annual compensation of $100,000, it was believed to be in the best interests of the bank. As the agreement has been criticized, I beg to request that it be terminated."

Wiggin conferred briefly with Pecora before giving him copies of the letter.

There was no indication whether Wiggin's action had been approved by the bank.

Roosevelt Denies McKee Aid in N. Y. Race

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt again was described in quarters close to him today as keeping hands off of local elections.

As for the New York City campaign it was said that he had not even read what was going on there.

This word was given out at the White House in response to inquiries concerning the declaration of Joseph V. McKee, New York mayoralty candidate, that a vote for him is a vote for Roosevelt.

As for his own vote this fall in the Dutchess County, New York, election, Mr. Roosevelt will send his ballot by mail to Hyde Park.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The name of President Roosevelt was drawn definitely into the mayoralty campaign today as Joseph V. McKee, Recovery party candidate, emblazoned the slogan:

"A vote for McKee is a vote for Roosevelt—a vote for LaGuardia is a vote against Roosevelt."

McKee, in a speech last night assailed Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the fusion nominee, as a "Socialist" supported by Republican enemies of the President.

LaGuardia said if either McKee or Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany, were elected "there will be peace in Tammany within two weeks."

Perjury Laid to Senator's Brother in Girl Beating

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Robert Barbour, millionaire New Jersey manufacturer, is expected to come here tomorrow to answer a perjury indictment growing out of a former actress' accusations that he struck her with a whip.

Barbour, head of the Linen Thread Company, and brother of United States Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, was indicted yesterday after a long grand jury inquiry.

Miss Nita Martini, 25, sued him for $100,000 last June. She charged that Barbour, who is 50, weighs 300 pounds and is more than six feet tall, whipped her repeatedly in a midtown apartment in September, 1932. She said she suffered a physical collapse and retired to her home in Rome, N. Y.

On August 14, Barbour complained to District Attorney Crain that Miss Martini and her lawyer were trying to defraud him through the suit. A grand jury, after investigation, dismissed Barbour's charge and indicted him.

Miss Martini was alleged to have charged that Barbour gave her checks in compensation for her bruises. He was reported to have denied he ever gave her checks or that he ever gave her more than $100 in cash.

Barbour lives in Paterson, N. J., and Great Neck, Long Island.

BABY STEALS SHOW AS BIG SHIP DOCKS

Resumption of Flight To Fair Awaits Clear Skies

AKRON, O., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Cradling in her spacious hull 21 passengers and a crew of 47, the Graf Zeppelin was brought into the giant Akron airdock early today after an all-night ride on the sharp gusts of an autumnal storm.

She was more than 33 hours out of Miami, Fla., when the 170-ton movable mooring mast dragged her full length into the dock where the American air cruisers Akron and Macon were built. She was moored nearly two hours after her trailing ground ropes fell into the hands of a waiting ground crew.

BABY STEALS SHOW

Amazingly good-natured, round faced and chubby, Master Billy Munson, of Rio De Janeiro—and the states, too—disembarked from the ship in the arms of his father, Richard Munson, American lawyer who spends part of his time in Brazil.

Dr. Hugo Eckener himself, the commander, was anything but immune to the charm of Billy, for right in the midst of going to a press conference, he stopped to rap on the window and wave his hand to the dirigible's most important and youngest personage in an adjoining office at the dock.

The baby's brother and sister and mother also were passengers.

DRIVES AGAINST GALE

From early last night, when she shot a ray of green light across the field until shortly before dawn the veteran skyrider, en route to Chicago to visit the Century of Progress Exposition, drove her bow into heavy winds and gusts of rain. Snow and sleet fell as she was being docked.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, calm commander of the globe-girdling Graf, announced as he descended from the control car that he would take off for Chicago at 11 p. m. (Pittsburgh time), tonight, weather permitting. He said:

"Of course, weather may delay our start until Thursday. But—"

He broke off, smiling, then continued:

"We'll make a slow trip to Chicago, landing about 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. We'll start our return trip to Akron 30 minutes later, arriving here about 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Then, at 8 o'clock Saturday we'll take off for Seville and Friedrichshafen."

Wynn explained that he was a showman and not a radio technical executive.

Doped Cigarets Trap 3 As State Fights Drugs

Drive Opens Here Against 'Weed' Giving Courage

A drive to stamp out the use of "Marijuana" weed, a Mexican plant which can be grown anywhere and produces effects similar to hashhish, was started here today by State Narcotic Agent Fenton Hayes.

Two Mexicans, a brother and sister, and a Negro woman, were held for court under $1,000 bail each, before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court, charged with conspiracy to violate the state narcotic act.

They are Frank Moredo, 29, and Mrs. Carmine Gomez, 27, of 1412 Hazel street, and Mrs. Lillian Steple, 40, a Negro, of 26 Crawford street, all from the Hill district.

Hayes predicted there would be prosecutions today of some members of the Mexican colony in Rankin.

The three were arrested by Hayes and City Detective Walter Monaghan after a buyer had purchased cigarets containing the drug at their homes with marked money. A machine for making cigarets and a quantity of cigaret papers were found at the Moredo home.

In court all denied they owned the cigarets. Mrs. Steple said the cigarets had been left at her home by a Mexican, who said another man would call for them.

"Marijuana" weed was added to the list of narcotics banned by law in this state September 1. Previously it could be bought in many places, and among its effects was said to be a feeling of courage.

Police reported in Philadelphia that several youthful participants in holdups had been smoking it.

A dangerous feature, according to Hayes, is that the plant can be grown anywhere in this climate.

At Rockview Penitentiary, he said, he found a patch of it in cultivation, and convicts in an entire cell block smoking it.

A counter charge of assault and battery was made against Bradley by Officer Sullivan before Justice of the Peace George H. House, of Braddock. He will be given a hearing Friday night.

ITALIAN PRINCE, WIFE IN CRASH

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, his wife and his sister, Princess Philip of Hesse, traveling incognito in a taxicab from Berlin to Potsdam, were involved in an accident in which no one was hurt, it was learned today.

Their driver crashed into a motorcycle and sidecar while the three royal visitors were en route to Potsdam to see the sights. The motorcycle was smashed.

Neither the taxi driver nor the motorcycle rider knew that distinguished persons were involved in the accident until the cyclist hailed a policeman who demanded the names of the passengers.

To spare the Italians the embarrassment of their presence in Berlin becoming known, the police president ordered suppression of the news of the accident in the German press.

thing. Right now we have him down to one-and-a-half to two quarts of whisky a day and he has shown some improvement, but he still isn't responsible.

"Last Sunday he went out riding with his nurse—and he was sober at the time—and he crashed into another car. He just hasn't any control."

Mrs. Welfer's attorney, Oliver K. Eaton, demanded if Dr. Ignelzi knew taht McCready had left the hospital at will and had been seen riding in the streets yesterday.

Dr. Ignelzi denied any knowledge of such matters.

PLENTY OF WHISKY

Two nurses attending McCready testified they had to give him whisky "whenever he wants it." Nurse Ethel Shea said she had taken away his clothes to keep him in the hospital.

Margiotti told the court that on December 6, 1930, Mrs. Welfer had signed a petition for a guardian for McCready because she regarded him as unfit to handle his own affairs, but that four days later she accepted the trust fund, regardless of his mental state.

Attorney Margiotti revealed that a subpena had been served on McCready yesterday by Mrs. Welfer's present husband.

This, he said, had been very upsetting to his client.

Attorney Eaton demanded to know why McCready had been mentally capable a few weeks ago, when he settled $38,000 on his second wife, Margaret Heasley McCready, if he were mentally deficient now.

SOCIETY WOMAN WILL BATTLE M'CORMICK

Mrs. Doubleday Seeks Early Hearing in Balm Suit

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Attorneys for Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, New York society woman, today announced they would press for an early hearing in the $1,500,000 suit started by Mrs. Doubleday against Harold F. McCormick, millionaire harvester magnate.

With the filing of the praecipe of the suit in Circuit Court here, Attorney William B. Gemmill, Jr., stated that Mrs. Doubleday's action is for breach of promise to marry after an asserted friendship that extended over a year.

Attorney Henry A. Uterhart, of New York, the plaintiff's chief counsel, asserted that Mrs. Doubleday is in "deadly earnest" and expects to push for an early hearing of her charges. When informed of the suit, McCormick said:

"I am awfully sorry. I have nothing to say."

Friends of McCormick, however, said he will fight the case to the limit.

Mrs. Doubleday, who is in her thirties, is prominent in New York society. She is the divorced wife of Felix Doubleday, New York book publisher.

McCormick, now 61, was divorced in 1921 by the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. In 1922, he married Ganna Walska, Polish opera singer, in Paris. He won an uncontested divorce decree from the singer here in 1931, charging desertion.

NUDIST GUILTY; PLANS APPEAL

ALLEGAN, Mich., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Having lost the first round to a Circuit Court jury of middle aged men and a relentless prosecutor, nudism, as represented by Fred C. Ring and some volunteer aides from the International Nudist Conference, was preparing today to carry its fight to the state Supreme Court.

The jury deliberated only 50 minutes yesterday afternoon before finding that Ring, a dancing instructor, committed indecent exposure at his nudist camp near here.

Dr. Ilsley Boone, a Baptist minister and secretary of the International Nudist Conference, said the conviction was the first in a score of similar cases. His intention of testifying to the benefits of nudism was frustrated by a court ruling that such evidence was incompetent.

Prosecutor Welborne S. Luna said it was doubtful if Mrs. Ring, against whom a similar charge is pending, would be brought to trial at this term of court.

Mrs. McCormick's Residence Auctioned

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The home of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick in suburban Lake Forest was sold yesterday for $51,624 to the American National Bank and Trust Company at a sheriff's sale.

The home, Villa Turicum, recently was valued at $2,000,000 by Edwin Krenn, former friend and business associate of Mrs. McCormick, in a petition by which he sought to stop the sale. He charged the sale would damage his rights under Mrs. McCormick's will.

MOTHER FIGHTS FOSTER PARENT FOR BABY

Beaver Woman Sobs Love for Child Left In Her Care

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

BEAVER, Pa., Oct. 25.—Two women fought for a child in court here today.

One was the mother, Mrs. Vicilia Gongalez, of Detroit, Mich.

The other was Mrs. William Hamilton, of Beaver Falls, who has been taking care of the child, Betty, 5, almost since birth. In tears Mrs. Hamilton sobbed out:

"I love her with all my heart."

The baby was in the court room.

Mrs. Gongalez turned over Betty to the Hamiltons in Trent, Mich., the night before Christmas of 1928 after the mother had been deserted by her husband.

She told of her search over several states to find the Hamiltons.

Now, she said, she wants her baby returned. She said she has another child, a boy of 8; that she is earning $16 a week in a foundry in Detroit and living in three rooms there with another family.

She testified she was "just kidding" when some time ago she wrote Mrs. Hamilton:

"You don't know a thing about me and Bill. Don't be surprised if somebody says she (the baby) looks like him."

"Bill" is Mrs. Hamilton's husband.

A similar letter bandied still another name.

Mrs. Hamilton told of the home she has given Betty, of her many clothes and toys and how she, a nurse, had nursed Betty back to health, and of the baby's pitiful condition in 1928.

SPURNS CHILD

Once, she said, she did return Betty to her mother, but two weeks later Mrs. Gongalez had brought back the child with this comment:

"Here, take the d—d brat, all it does is squawk."

Mrs. Hamilton herself has had four children, all of whom died at birth, according to testimony.

Mrs. Gongalez told of having Mrs. Hamilton arrested six months ago in Pittsburgh on a charge of kidnaping the child, but authorities dropped the case after investigation.

ROBBER GIVEN 15 YEARS

Convicted of attempted safe robbery, Harry Thornburg, of the North Side, alleged pal of Raymond English, who was shot down by a city detective during an attempted escape in front of North Side Police Station, today was sentenced to 15 years in West Virginia state penitentiary, according to word from Parkersburg, W. Va.

Thornburg was given the maximum of 10 years on a breaking and entering charge and an additional five years on West Virginia's habitual criminal law.

Thornburg was arrested here on a warrant from Parkersburg shortly after the attempted dynamiting of a safe in the office of the Workmen's Finance Corporation in that city.

Several days after the attempted robbery, City Detective Harry Foster, on August 31, arrested English. English bolted and was fatally shot by Foster.

Thornburg's brother, Reuben, is to go on trial Monday at Parkersburg on a similar charge.

Two Mexicans Held in First Case Under New Law Banning 'Loco Weed' as Dope

FRANK MOREDO, 29, AND HIS SISTER, CARMEN GOMEZ, 27, IN THEIR HEARING TODAY

The two Mexicans held for court today as the state opened a drive under a new law, effective September 1, to stamp out the use of "Marijuana," known to its smokers as "loco weed."

STATE SETS UP REPEAL VOTE MACHINERY

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Awaiting a court decision on an injunction petitioning to prevent the state from voting on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Pennsylvania today was all set up with the machinery necessary for the election of anti-prohibition delegates on November 7.

The Dauphin County Court heard arguments Monday on the case brought by nationwide anti-repeal forces and will hand down an opinion tomorrow. State officials are confident the restraining order will be refused.

SUPREME COURT RULING

They cite the United States Supreme Court refusal to review a similar case which dry leaders lost in Missouri, pointing out that the Pennsylvania action like that in Missouri was instituted with the same purpose of testing the federal legislation permitting state conventions to vote on repeal.

Dr. Chase and counsel for the anti-repealists who filed the Pennsylvania case contend state conventions to modify the National Constitution are not valid. They claim such conventions are not representative of the people and, through delegates pledged in advance, bar debate which they say is essential to the representative plan of government.

SCHNADER'S PLEA

Attorney General Schnader, in urging dismissal of the pending case, stressed the fact that the injunction asked seeks to prevent the secretary of the commonwealth from doing something he has already done. Certify the names of the 15 wet and 15 dry candidates for convention delegates to county commissioners.

The Pennsylvania act creates a convention of 15 delegates elected at large, which meets on December 5. This is the date which repeal forces have as that on which the Eighteenth Amendment will be officially stricken from the Constitution.

M'CLURE AGAIN LINKED IN RUM GRAFT CHARGE

By SYDNEY B. EIGES
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—A bizarre motif—the picture of a power-drunk, rum-raiding constable awakened at dawn by the soft swish of $100 bills—was painted at the conspiracy trial of Senator John J. McClure and 75 other defendants in staid old Federal Court today.

The word painter was D. Harvey Sykes, a former constable, now serving a prison term for extortion, who previously had testified he had been hired by McClure in 1922 to "lay off" stills and speakeasies whose owners were paying for "protection." Sykes' wages were $25 weekly, he said.

PROTECTION MONEY

But soon Sykes developed a big, broad outlook, according to his testimony. As a government witness, he painted this picture of the liquor ring's operations:

He began to "muscle in" on the protection money for running beer from a brewery. Twice, he said, he was bought off—the first time for $500. The next time the price jumped to $1,000.

Then he was called to the office of Senator McClure.

Sykes said McClure demanded:

"Don't you know that's my money you're taking? You'll have to lay off the brewery."

Late in 1926 there was a meeting attended by Andy Frank, hotel-keeper, Edgar Davis, self-styled private investigator for McClure, and Zeke Parker, former state policeman and operator of the brewery.

BRIBE CHARGE

It was agreed that Sykes and Davis were to collect $25 a week for "laying off" beer trucks leaving the brewery, Sykes said.

On one occasion, however, Sykes stopped four beer trucks. John F. Bauer, secretary to Senator McClure, came to the rescue and promised Sykes $1,000 to allow the trucks to proceed, Sykes testified.

Sykes was "too tired" to go get the money himself, but the next day he sent Davis to Bauer's office, according to Sykes.

At this point Sykes introduced the "hundred-dollar-fan" motif.

As he told it:

"Later in the morning he (Davis) came to my house and woke me up by fanning my face with five $100 bills!"

REPLY AWAITED IN BURGESS OUSTER CASE

Charging that Lee A. Wiser, burgess of Forest Hills, sold paving materials to the borough through a third party in violation of law, five citizens are seeking to oust him from office.

Through Attorney G. Malcolm McDonald, the complainants have requested that the District Attorney join in quo warranto proceedings to remove Wiser.

Evidence against Wiser was presented yesterday before Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt. The defense has been given until Friday to answer.

SALE DESCRIBED

The action is brought by Alexander Schreib, T. A. Jordan, Samuel Richards, J. W. W. Ow and William J. Campbell.

The complaint says Wiser is president of the Wadsworth Stone and Paving Company and accuses him of selling to the borough for that company quantities of street paving material.

In one instance he is charged with persuading Jerome C. Mansmann to allow use of his name in the purchase of $232 worth of asphalt materials. Wiser, it is charged, said he could not make the sale to the borough because of his position as burgess.

PAYMENT TO COMPANY

Mansmann, the complaint says, permitted use of his name in the transaction but the material delivered was that of Wiser's company.

Payment, it is charged, was made to the Wadsworth company, Mansmann receiving no compensation.

Wiser was appointed burgess to fill the unexpired term of John France. Defeated recently for the Republican nomination, he announced he would run independently.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Letters are piling up, fellows! Today we are going to try to print even more than usual in the Mail Box. And by the way, how did you like the rules and regulations submitted by the Laurel Gardens Junior Patrol? Write and tell us what you thought of them, and what changes or additions you can suggest.

Note to James Hoover, of 228 Forty-fifth street. We are looking up your pledges, and will find out about them right away.

Flora Montgomery, of Box 303, Claysville, Pa., sends this letter:

"Please send us some extra pins and emblems in case we should lose ours. We are going camping next summer with my older sister and a neighbor for a few days. What we know about the Junior Patrol we think is very wonderful, and our parents do, too. We would like some other members to write to us. Our colors are green and white. Please send a book or a paper which tells about the armbands. I am the captain of our division."

It's this way, Flora. You must be elected captain by at least 10 members of a patrol, and your term is one year. Then, when you send the names and numbers of your members to headquarters and your name, we send the captain an armband. We're sorry we can't send extra pins. We must get a pledge or copy of a pledge for every pin and card we send, Flora. You only need five more members to have a real patrol.

Margaret Scholer, of 5 Graib street, North Side, says she is the captain of a patrol with 10 members now. But she only sends one pledge. If your friends are already members, Margaret, send their names and card numbers right away.

John Church, of 6413 Jackson street, East End, has four members in his patrol now. All you need to elect a captain now, John, is six more members in your patrol.

Rose Carolina Grossi sends a pledge and writes that she is thinking of starting a Junior Patrol in Bridgeville. Fine and dandy, Rose, and we are glad you want to help the Junior Patrol.

COLDS Go Overnight

When You Take The Right Thing!

A cold doesn't have to run its course and expose you to serious complications. A cold can be routed overnight if you go about it the right way. First of all, a cold being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. Secondly, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and beware of dealers who offer substitutes.

LINDY SUSPECT CLUES LINKED TO RANSOM

preme Court for permission to open the box in which they believe may be found some of the $50,000 ransom money in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

A raid on the Harrison avenue apartment of Gorch and his companion, Evelyn Khmascewska, revealed several letters written to Gorch and the woman at New York City addresses. Officials said the addresses were in the vicinity where some of the Lindbergh ransom money was passed in chain and drug stores.

OTHER CLUES CHECKED

The raid on the apartment also revealed other clues, the raiders said. Clarence D. McKean, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, said he was told by Agent Frank W. Allen that Gorch revealed names of certain New York residents with whom Gorch was acquainted. These "leads" will be followed, McKean said.

The center of activity in the probe shifted to New York today where the "alibi" furnished by Gorch was checked. Gorch told officials that he was living with a half-sister on a farm at Hopewell, N. J., at the time of the kidnaping. On the day of the kidnaping, Gorch said, he was in New York. He gave the names of several friends he said he was with.

NAMES OF SUSPECTS

Along with letters seized in the raid on Gorch's apartment here were certain papers with the names of persons who have figured in the Lindbergh kidnaping investigation. These persons again were being checked with the possibility that if Gorch himself was not implicated his friends were.

A Lynn woman reported to police that Gorch and his companion had applied for lodging at her home the day after the kidnaping. She reported the man said he had driven 300 miles and was bound for Maine.

HELD ON 3 COUNTS

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—John Gorch, who was questioned yesterday regarding the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, was arraigned in Municipal Court today on three fugitive warrants charging larceny and impersonating a police officer.

He was charged with larceny of $3,050 from Helen Kamiski, of New York, impersonating an officer and stealing $200 from Theodore Demchuk, of Newark, N. J., and larceny of an undetermined amount from Mary Butryan, of Hudson City, N. J.

Is He 'The John?'

JOHN GORCH . . . HELD FOR LINDBERGH KIDNAPING PROBERS

Prisoner Gorch, held at Boston for a Philadelphia larceny and under investigation in several other cities, who has come under the scrutiny of officers still working on the Lindbergh kidnaping case. Police point to his resemblance to the "John" who received the $50,000 ransom money from "Jafsie," Dr. John F. Condon, in a New York Park. This is an International News Service Photograph picture.

RUSSIANS FACE DEPORTATION

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Recognition of the Soviet Union will be followed by wholesale and forcible evacuation of Russians from America, probably thousands of them being deported by this country and extradited by their own.

Two government departments are now working on this problem and it seems probable recognition will quickly result in bulk removal of Russians who have found sanctuary here.

They have remained unmolested so far because America could not send them back to a country the existence of which it did not officially acknowledge, and because Russia could not reach in to take them across our diplomatic barrier of non-recognition.

The Department of Labor, through the Immigration Bureau, is studying the matter of deportation of undesirables and the Attorney General's office is looking into the question of extradition by Russia.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said there were numerous Russians in this country illegally, but they still have to be classified as to which section of the immigration laws affects them.

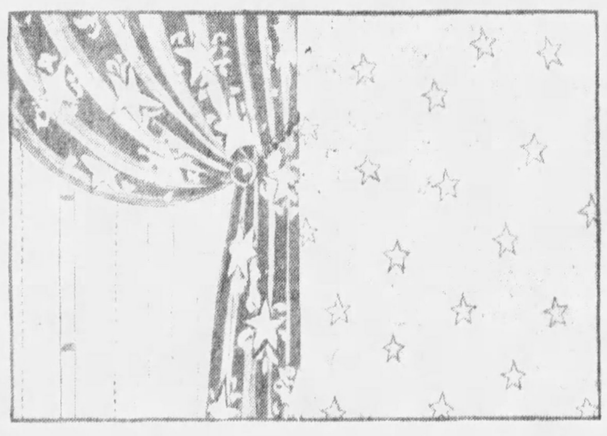
But we've saved the best news until last. Celanese fabrics, despite their luxurious appearance, and superior quality which are the result of years of scientific research, are quite low priced.

Drapery and Upholstery Celanese, including moires, satin-stripe taffetas, self-printed satins, rough textured crepe Ondese and plain taffetas are priced 75c to $1.75 yard.

Sheer Voiles and Gauze for curtains, $1.35 yard.

Chintz

AND WALL-PAPER



ARE NOW DESIGNED TO HARMONIZE

One of those brilliant ideas that make us wonder why it wasn't done before . . . because draperies and wall papers must spend their lives together. But it's such a welcome idea to homemakers who want something different, something lovely but inexpensive. In our Chintz Room you may choose wall paper for any room in your home and at the same time choose chintz for draperies or other decorative uses to match or contrast with the paper. You select both chintz and paper side by side, displayed just as it will be in your room—you are not experimenting, you know exactly how your walls and windows are going to look. The possibilities for unusual effects are endless!

BINGHAM NAMED NOV. 11 PARADE MARSHAL

Plans for Pittsburgh's fifteenth Armistice Day parade were made last night at a meeting of the parade committee of the Federation of Veteran Societies, in the 28th Signal Company Armory, East Liberty. Harry Fossett, chairman, presided.

Assisting Fossett are Charles P. Haley, head of the music committee; Col. John A. Shenkel, in charge of reception; Col. Samuel D. Foster, entertainment, and Charles D. Lane, Jr., chairman of the budget committee.

John L. Bingham was named grand marshal of the parade. Marchers will be divided into four groups. At the head will be the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with disabled men and members of the G. A. R. riding in special cars. They will be followed by American Legion posts, divisional outfits, and active National Guard units.

Gen. E. C. Shannon, lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania, and war-time commander of the 111th Infantry, 28th Division, will lead the parade division including men who served under him in France. Gen. E. G. Peyton, of Ft. Benning, Ga., who led the 320th Infantry Regiment of the 18th Division in the World War, also will take part.

In conjunction with the Armistice Day celebration the 111th Infantry will hold its annual reunion at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Lieut.-Gov. Shannon will be guest of honor at the reunion banquet the night preceding the parade.

REVENUE BOARD URGED BY BARR

A board of revenue to attend to collection of debts owed Allegheny County again has been urged by County Commissioner C. M. Barr, the unofficial "bill collector" for the commissioners.

Barr has garnered thousands of dollars for the county treasury, but yesterday told his colleagues there are large sums outstanding with no concentrated effort being made to collect. He said a board of revenue could be created at little cost, to serve as a clearing house for debts.

He added that before such a bureau could be set up it would be necessary to obtain the cooperation of the judges, commissioners, sheriff and controller.

Sebrell, Shrine Head, Will Be Feted Here

Making his first official visit to Pittsburgh, Imperial Potentate John W. Sebrell will be guest speaker at the fall ceremonial of Syria Temple, Monday night.

Mr. Sebrell

With Mrs. Sebrell, he will arrive in Pittsburgh Sunday night. They will be guests of Potentate John G. Daub. Mrs. Sebrell will be entertained by Mrs. Daub at a bridge breakfast at the Twentieth Century Club Monday morning.

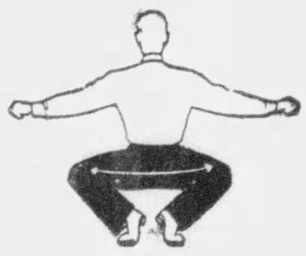
Living Clothes for MEN



SUITS . . . TOPCOATS . . . EVENING CLOTHES

It is our great privilege to present, tomorrow, the first basic improvement in men's clothing in centuries. Lastex, the miracle yarn, has been woven into clothing fabrics producing qualities of fit, comfort, and bodily freedom entirely new to man's experience. Living Clothes comply with every standard of fine tailoring, and offer the same fabrics, patterns, and models as other high-grade clothes. That all may see them—

None Will Be Sold Tomorrow

You CAN'T BUY, this first day; you can ONLY LOOK! Examine, try one, and otherwise acquaint yourself with Living Clothes, without obligation. It will be entirely a day of inspection. All men are cordially invited.

Man's Age-Old Dream of Comfort Fulfilled

Clothes have always placed restraint on the bodily freedom of man. Undressing is an instinctive act towards physical comfort, relaxation, and freedom of movement. Flexibility in clothes has long been a dream of the race.

The invention of knitting gave some promise in this direction, but unfortunately knitted fabrics, when once stretched, stay stretched, and lose their shapeliness and service.

Then came the invention of Lastex, which furnished the long-sought element, which, woven into the fibre of exisiting yarns, endows them with its own quality of LIVING resilience.

And now for the first time, Lastex has been woven into men's clothing fabrics. The textures, patterns, and colors are identically those of other fine clothes, but invisibly woven into the core of their fibre is this miracle yarn.

The advantages of Living Clothes will be readily appreciated. First there is the inexpressible COMFORT of complete freedom of movement. The power to move and breathe, without restraint, removes one of the most important contributory causes of fatigue, and promotes health.

Then there is the simplicity of FIT—a 38 or 40 is all the same to Living Clothes. You don't have to be built to fit Living Clothes, they fit themselves to you. They expand and contract with changes in weight, or after a hearty meal, as naturally as one's flesh.

Living Clothes wrinkle less easily and hold their shape better than ordinary clothes. Laboratory tests vouch for their wearing qualities.

Following the formal presentation of Living Clothes here tomorrow, they will be offered nation-wide, and history will write the beginning of a new chapter of man's progress in dress.

Gull Seizes Hook, Caught By Angler

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Oct. 25.—Commissioner Reuben W. Edwards, on a fishing trip cast from his boat. Before the fish could bite, a large sea gull swooped down, snatched hook, line and sinker, and started skywards.

It Would Be A Hill Billy I'd Find!

By AIRCASTER

You've read about him: the strange, bedraggled figure stumbling along the road to Pittsburgh who loomed up weirdly in the glare of a motorcycle cop's headlight.

Dusk and a chill fog filmed his high leather boots, and a bitter wind flapped his floppy five-gallon hat.

The trooper took him in tow and locked him up in the Squirrel Hill "squirrel cage"—a vagrant.

To the authorities' questions he mumbled incoherent replies.

It became apparent that he didn't own a thin dime. So he slept in his vagrant's cell over the week-end.

A police captain went to look over the curious visitor Monday morning. Somehow his memory was vaguely stirred. He'd read, somewhere, about such a costume and such a lad!

Must Be Zeke!

But the prisoner wouldn't talk. He merely sulked.

And then the police skipper's memory suddenly clicked.

"Aircaster!" (not the vagrant) "Aircaster, in the Sun-Telegraph, had told of a Hill Billy named Zeke who had quit the act of Pappy, Ezra, Zeke and Elton, the WMCA-New York musical mountaineers last Wednesday! One of the lads had left the other three holding the bag in the midst of a commercial program, and had completely disappeared!

"This must be Zeke!"

WMCA was notified, and the Hill Billies' manager flew to Pittsburgh with news that the deserted sponsor would go ahead with the program, if Zeke would come back to the act.

And Zeke would. He flew back over the mountains yesterday.

Famous Musician

The "Hill Billy" who spent the week-end in the Squirrel Hill hoosegow is really a celebrity!

It is a greater mystery than his WMCA walkout, why he is content to hike the highways, penniless, in a calico shirt, when, simply by putting on his store clothes he would instantly be recognized as the famous organist that he is.

Accordionist Zeke of the Hill Billies, playing a pipe organ program for West Coast network listeners a short while ago, proved himself one of the finest of living musicians.

His real name is Mannis.

A sackful of mail that George Seibel received after last Sunday's WCAE broadcast proves a number of things:

That his scholarly chats on the "World of Books" have a tremendous and eager following, and that ours is a city of culture. (QED)

That George's World of Books has no oceans. The friendly fan letters, checking him up on one of his figures of speech, reminded him that Admirals aren't educated at West Point.

Col. Hedges, (no West Point graduate, but up from the rank of a shavetail in Army aviation), points out a three-station network.

The Princess Pat dramas are the network's only program — KDKA, WJR, Detroit, and WENR, Chicago.

Aw, Gee Whiz!

It spoils my whole Christmas! My boy-friend gets everything. Nobody ever told me my musical tastes were "too radically beautiful!"

Mark Wednesday evenings on your radio calendar these days, and let Albert Spalding thrill you with the music of his wonderful violin!

Listen—and you'll hear melodies you love! The old, old tunes you've whistled and hummed and sung—spirituals, gay Viennese waltzes, folk-songs! And Mr. Spalding plays them as you've never heard them played before.

Don Voorhees and his orchestra support Mr. Spalding. Also Conrad Thibault, the outstanding young baritone, and a chorus of 8 vocalists.

This program, sponsored by makers of Fletcher's Castoria, is broadcast every Wednesday

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

Strange and unseemly stories might come from all parts of the world, but practically all of them have been matched by a personal experience of one of the globe-trotters.

We had a story of a man working on a farm, hale and hearty, despite the fact that he carried a bullet close to his heart.

Today Hugh Hamilton, of Van Vorhis, W. Va., writes that he has been carrying one near his heart for some 28 years. He is 74 today and is a strong as he ever was!

Maybe some of the old timers remember when he was mistaken for another man and shot four times. It happened in a once well-known Smithfield street restaurant.

Mrs. D. W. Millan, Coraopolis, reading about a woman who found a valuable violin in the attic, writes of her possession.

She asks the meaning of "Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis, Faciebat Anno Domini 1719."

The Latin words purport to tell the maker of the instrument and the numerals indicate the year of manufacture.

If the label is authentic the instrument would be a Cremona or a "Strad," Cremona being the name of the city and Stradivarious the name of the great maker of fiddles. An instrument of his manufacture undoubtedly would be of great value.

However, you can't go by that Latin inscription. A great many instruments carry it that might have been turned out of a cigar box with a jigsaw. Have some recognized expert examine it.

Peggy, Arnold—I don't know of any teacher who specializes in blues singing. Many of the better blues singers have taken voice instruction from teachers of the classics.

Regardless of what you sing the same fundamental principles of voice placing and breathing are involved.

WEDNESDAY'S FIVE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER.

MRS. R. C. YEAGER,
Patton Township.
SWEET POTATO SURPRISES.

(Makes 15 to 20 croquettes.)

Three cups cooked and mashed sweet potatoes.
One-fourth to one-half cup thin cream or evaporated milk (amount depending on the potatoes).
One-half cup brown or white sugar.
One egg.
Three-fourths cup moist cocoanut.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Marshmallows.
Crushed cornflakes.

Cook the potatoes tender in boiling water. Mash and add enough cream or evaporated milk to beat to a fluff. Add the sugar, beaten egg, cocoanut, salt and mix thoroughly. Let stand until cool. Press a marshmallow in the center of a portion of the potatoe mixture and form into a ball. Roll each ball in crushed cornflakes, dip in diluted beaten egg, then roll again in the cornflakes. Fry in deep fat (375 to 390 degrees) until nicely brown. Drain on brown paper and serve. For luncheon purposes the marshmallows may be cut into halves and the potatoe balls made smaller.

SECRET ARMING TALES ANNOY NAZI REGIME

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The drums of Nazi propaganda have begun to beat throughout the world the praises of the German government.

Today the emphasis is on peace, upon Germany's earnest will for amity.

Whispers heard in other lands that Germany is secretly arming, that quasi-military target practice is sponsored among storm troopers and that chemists are working out new destructive gases of war, are particularly vexatious to the Hitler government.

FACTORY EXHIBITED

So touchy is Germany on the question of her "secret armies" that one of the largest chemical factories today took a group of foreign correspondents through its plant to demonstrate that no poisonous gases were being manufactured.

As a corollary to her slogan about peaceful intentions, the German foreign propaganda emphasizes its campaign against Bolshevism.

The more this idea is accepted by the outside world, the easier it is to explain Germany's brown marching columns and military discipline.

Every Nazi propagandist dins the idea into the ears of foreigners.

It follows, then, that Nazi foreign propaganda is also much concerned with discrediting German emigres abroad, for these deny both Hitlerism's peaceful intentions and the alleged imminence of Communism before Hitler seized power.

WORLD MISSION SEEN

Though denying officially that Naziism tries to interfere with the political systems of other countries, the utterances of Hitler and subleaders indicate Nazism considers itself intrusted with a world mission.

One aspect of this is the display of anti-Semitism which it tries to popularize in other countries.

Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, in a speech last September, warned Jewry the whole world soon would discuss the Jewish problem with disastrous results to Jews.

Another aspect is the derogation of democracy and the extolling of fascism or "the leadership principle."

The average Nazi is firmly convinced the whole world will sooner or later be reorganized along fascist principles.

British Seek Action On Writer's Arrest

MUNICH, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—At request of the British government, the British consul at Munich today lodged representations with the Bavarian foreign office regarding the arrest of Noel Panther, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.

Authorities informed the consulate, according to officials there, that Panther "is suspected of espionage."

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—Government officials today said Noel Panther, English correspondent, had been taken into custody because of alleged "slanderous remarks" at a mass meeting Sunday where Chancellor Hitler spoke.

Nazi Scientists Hail Compulsory Sterilization

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—A majority of specialists discussing the Nazi sterilization law at a meeting of the German Gynecological Society today hailed the new measures as eugenically recommendable. The law becomes effective January 1, 1934.

Prof. Eugene Fischer, anthropologist and director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, said that it meant a fundamental change for the surgeon inasmuch as, instead of considering the patient as hitherto, he now has to consider the weal of the whole nation and, in certain circumstances, to disregard the patient's personal interests.

Quoting medical authority, Prof. Fischer pointed out that hereditary mental defectives in Germany numbered a quarter of a million and they were unfortunately, he said, prolific.

Prof. Ludwig Seitz, the gynecologist, spoke on the advisability that a control be introduced soon so as to make sterilization operative before puberty.

Prof. Kohlrausch, jurist, pointed out that the new law only dealt with sterilization and was not concerned with the interruption of pregnancy, which, however, he said might be expected to be regulated shortly.

The Roman Catholic standpoint which rejects sterilization on ethical grounds was raised in the course of the discussion as a matter which touched the borderline between the realms of medicine and moral theology.

WAR PLANS LAID TO STEEL MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Great steel corporations are accused by the Rev. Julian D. Hamlin, of Boston, of "preparing for the next war, paying the Hitlers to organize movements to crucify Christ anew in His own people." In a sermon last night he said:

"All summer long we have had the sorry picture of the great munitions corporations lobbying at Geneva in the interest of Hitler, Japan, war.

"The British Armstrong-Vickers Corporation was fighting England's own representatives at the League of Nations. All the Krengers are not dethroned yet, nor the Insulls in prison."

Mr. Hamlin, who is rector of the Episcopal Church of the Advent in the Massachusetts city, said the church is "dead or almost dead today in Russia."

Woman Shoe Patron Robbed of Purse, $57

While she was "trying on" a new pair of shoes in a downtown department store, a sneak thief walked off with her purse containing $57, Mrs. Albert Mattern, of 125 East Myers avenue, reported to city detectives today.

Two boys snatched a purse from Catherine Connors, of 3105 Niagara street, in Ophelia street, last night. It contained small change.

NAZI LEADER'S OUSTER SOUGHT BY U. S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—A protest meeting before Mayor John P. O'Brien over his cancellation of a German patriotic celebration has brought announcement from the House Immigration Committee's chairman that he would seek deportation of a member of the "Steel Helmets."

Representatives of the United German Societies of New York City, who have been ordered to cancel a German day celebration Sunday because of reputed Nazi auspices informed Mayor John P. O'Brien today they did not have time to attend a hearing on the matter this afternoon at City Hall.

The mayor was informed of their attitude in a letter signed by Dr. Wilhelm Popcke, honorary president.

It had been formulated at an all-night session of delegates who yesterday afternoon met with the mayor in protest against his order. Among them was Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed Nazi chief in the United States, whose deportation as an undesirable alien is being sought in Washington.

Representative Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, said he would urge deportation of Spanknoebel, a member of the German "Steel Helmets" and a delegate to the protest meeting. Of Spanknoebel, he said:

"He's one of the chief agitators for a complete Nazi program."

ARMS PARLEY ADJOURNMENT URGED

GENEVA, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The steering committee recommended today that the disarmament conference be adjourned until December 4 as reports circulated that Germany would submit proposals under which she could return to the parley and the League of Nations.

These reports, originating in German circles, said the reich's position would be set forth after the plebiscite elections of November 12, called for when the nation's intention to withdraw from both assemblages was announced.

This recommendation was made with the understanding that the parley begin on that date if the president, Arthur Henderson, and the committee is convinced sufficient progress has been made in the meantime and it would be useful to then convene.

Another meeting of the Steering Committee will be held tomorrow after the session of the conference which will pass upon the recommendation made today.

The sense of the meeting as summarized by one of the participants was that the conference should continue and should not in any way be used to place Germany in an unfair position.

HITLER FLYING IN VOTE DRIVE

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The Nazi campaign for votes in the all-important November 12 plebiscite was thrown into high today.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who opened his personal campaign in a speech that brought ear-splitting cheers from 20,000 at the Sportpalast, started on a whirlwind airplane tour of the country.

Pamphlets and handbills were scattered broadcast reiterating Germany's will to peace and calling on the electorate for an overwhelming vote in support of the reich's foreign policy.

'SPIKE' GIVES SENATOR VIEWS ON CRIME

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Take it from no less an authority than Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, something should be done about the crime situation.

For, as "Spike," once described by police as a "public enemy," so aptly put it, "crime does not pay."

He shouted these words of warning to the world in general yesterday after he had buttonholed United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, of New York, and detailed to him, in part, his idea of what to do to curb the criminal.

Nattily attired in brown ensemble, which contrasted vividly with his diamond-bedecked shirt front and fingers, O'Donnell, a reputed former beer runner with ambitions to go on the stage, attempted to testify before the Senate sub-committee on racketeering and kidnaping, but Senator Louis Murphy, of Iowa, wouldn't let him in.

TALKS TO SENATOR

So Spike did the next best thing and talked to Senator Copeland. He said:

"Now about this crime business. All you need is honest cops and a little co-operation from the courts. I want to say something about Tom Courtney. (The State's Attorney for Cook County.) I'm not saying it because he likes me. He tried to iron me out a few weeks ago. (Presumably O'Donnell referred to his recent acquittal on a charge of being a vagrant.) He's done more to wipe out rackets in a few months than any other State's Attorney.

"And I know."

There was more of this before motion picture men dragged O'Donnell away to hear him shout that "crime doesn't pay" and to say into the microphone that he regarded kidnaping as the "lowest form of racket."

COURTNEY IRKED

About that time Senator Copeland turned to find State's Attorney Courtney waiting for him, and to learn that Mr. Courtney didn't seem to be very much pleased with the compliments O'Donnel had been paying him. The State's Attorney asked:

"What did you waste time on that fellow for? I wouldn't waste 30 seconds of my time on Spike O'Donnell."

Senator Copeland told O'Donnell that he wished to have him take the stand at the sub-committee's crime hearing, before it terminated yesterday, to tell how to keep the youth of the country from becoming criminals. O'Donnell replied:

"I could have told you plenty."

Sonata D Major ..... A. Rubinstein
Concerto ..... Lalo
Second and Third movements.
Choral ..... J. S. Bach
Evening Song ..... R. Schumann
Chansonetta ..... Jean Duport
Etude E Minor ..... Fr. Chopin—A. Glazounow
Oriental Dance ..... Zelig

Samuel Kliachko, Pittsburgh cellist, gave his annual recital last night in the auditorium of the Y. M. and W. H. A. before a large audience. The musician is a favorite about town and his admirers were all enthusiastic in their applause.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program was built on the Rubinstein Sonata, as dull music as one can find. There is not one theme in this work that one would want to remember any longer than the most ordinary salon music. It gave the cellist very little opportunity to show his talents and was really a better show piece for Mrs. Kliachko at the piano.

The Lalo Concerto was more outstanding and brilliant but in the smaller pieces, where Kliachko can sing a good melody, he was at his best. It seems to me that this player has so long been in the ensemble of orchaserta and chamber music groups that he plays constantly with too much restraint when soloist. His attitude is too apologetic for what he gives and leaves his playing somewhat colorless for the casual listener who does not take the trouble to look further for his musicianship.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

TRANSFER ENDS CHURCH CLASH

By mutual consent, a temporary injunction to prevent the Rev. Z. K. Vipartis, former pastor of St. George's Lithuanian Catholic Church, South Nineteenth street, from interfering with services, has been continued.

Attorney Martin Silverman, representing the church board, informed the court that Rev. Father Vipartis has been transferred to Westville, Ill., by the bishop of the church, and has decided to go. He has been succeeded by the Rev. Michael Vaťadka. Rev. Father Vipartis had sought to enforce a life contract with the congregation, claiming $10,000 was due him in event of the cancellation.

Love Alone Doesn't Smooth Path After Marriage

She's a twinkle toes.

He's a stick-in-the-mud.

She longs for the bright lights. He prefers to read by the fire.

What chance marriage?

Not so good, it would seem. Yet they love each other—really. Then what? Can marriage make two such different hearts "beat as one"?

Dear Elsie—

A year ago I met a wonderful man. And he really is wonderful. Honest, and clean-cut, and brilliant, too. I have been giving him all of my time for several months now, and he has asked me to marry him. I know that he would always be on the square with me. He just naturally is that kind. And I do love him. I would say "yes" this minute, if it weren't for one thing.

He and I are so different. I am naturally gay and sociable. I love to be among people, to dance, to go places. I always have loved to. It is just part of me. But he is of a quiet, more or less solitary nature. He likes nothing better than to stay home in front of an open fire, and smoke his pipe and read. He doesn't care for people around him. He dances, but he doesn't care to do it much.

GIRL DOUBTFUL

I know that if we were married he would want to spend most of the evenings at home. And he imagines I would, once we were married and had our own place. "Being comfortable" he calls it. And now he chaffs me, good-naturedly, about liking to be on the go.

He tells me, over and over again, that I am the only girl for him, and that he loves me deeply. I think that is true. And it makes me go cold to think of giving him up. But—

I am afraid that if we do marry it will be just another one of those marriages where the wife has to go out—and if she goes at all—alone, or with friends. I know, too, that I couldn't stand it to stay at home all the time. I love him, but I need to mix with people, too. And I would want my husband to go places with me.

He seems to feel that I would get over wanting company—that love would be enough to fill my life. But I don't know. Do you think we could get along? Or would we make each other unhappy? ESTA.

MEET HALF WAY

Could you get along?

Not if both of you insist on having your own way. Love, alone, won't smooth the path for two people who have different needs, different outlooks on life. Or even for those who seem to have the same!

But love, combined with tolerance and fair play, will.

So sit down, Esta, and put it up to him. He doesn't have to sit at home all the time. You don't have to go out all the time. He can't expect love to make you over into something you are not. You can't expect love to make him over into something he is not.

But you can meet each other half way.

If you can do that—if you're willing to respect his right to a quiet evening, and share it with him; if he is willing to respect your right to friends and fun, and share them with you—then go ahead. You will find something very rare and beautiful, and you'll both grow into broader, finer, happier people.

Is your love big enough to do that?

If it isn't, you'd better leave marriage out of your program. For marriage with any man, or any woman, would involve just that.

Fay King Shows How All Hands Benefit by Buying Now

By FAY KING

Business is the backbone of prosperity, and business consists entirely of buying and selling.

Where there is no transaction between a seller and a buyer there is no business, and where there is no business there is no prosperity.

Even a professional career is only business. They call their customers "clients," "patients" or their "dear public," but it's really no different from the man who sells soda crackers.

Of course, we don't say that we "buy" opera or operations, but we pay for them just the same!

This business of buying and selling is an endless chain that benefits all, for the seller of one thing is the buyer of another.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Sees Successful End to All Her Planning

My mother-in-law was in a difficult mood. I saw that as I came close to her arm chair, with Philip Veritzen flamboyantly escorting me. Her foot in its modish shoe—Mother Graham is almost childishly proud of her beautifully shaped feet—was tapping the rug; an ominous sign well known to her family, indicating stormy weather upon the household seas. From behind her chair Harry Underwood's eyes flashed humorous warning, and I braced myself for squalls.

They would not blow in Philip Veritzen's direction, however. I saw that instantly, for he bent low before her, with the reverential attention he might have given a testy duchess, while his deep, almost caressing voice would have soothed Elizabeth of England herself.

"I trust Mrs. Graham has given you my explanation why I have not presented myself to you before," he went on; and my mother-in-law, who had extended her hand to him much in the manner of one hypnotized, gave me what Lillian calls "her best askance look."

ENTHUSED ABOUT ROSES

"Something was said to me about a delayed or missent letter," she said loftily, leaving the implication I had not taken the trouble to make any adequate explanation to her.

"Oh, do let me explain, to you," he pleaded, and launched for the third time into the tale of the lost letter which even then, I knew guiltily, was hidnen in my bag, where I put it after taking it away from Avis Arlen.

"Of course, it is perfectly all right," she said. "Please do not speak of it again. You are here at last. That is all that matters. What do you think of our decorations?"

"They are truly wonderful," he said. Then Mary, coming up with Noel, struck just the right note when she caught her grandmother by the arm and exclaimed:

"Oh, Granzie! What do you think? This darling man says he is going to send me my favorite roses—those bronzy-yellow ones with the rose pink edges—for my wedding. Won't they be just gorgeous against the oak leaves and the laurel?"

Mother Graham's eyes kindled with enthusiasm.

MOTHER PLEASED

"Indeed they will," she said, "while as for the table in the dining room—Margaret; didn't I hear you saying something about roses of that color?"

"I had thought of them, yes," I said, "because they are Mary's favorite. Mr. Veritzen, your kindly thought makes us all very happy."

"Thank you," he returned. "Be assured of one thing. You will have plenty of blossoms."

"You'll wade in them." Lillian whispered to me a minute later, when I had stepped back from the little group which Mother Graham was dominating. She was so plainly reveling in her role of grande dame, graciously receiving her granddaughter's future husband and his father, that I did not wish to run the risk of having Mr. Veritzen give me even any perfunctory attention which would interfere ever so slightly with her position in the center of the stage.

"I hope so," I returned.

"Greedy! Greedy!" she said softly, and I smiled in acquiescence.

"Guilty, m'lud," I said. "I never can get enough roses."

"You'll have enough this time," she said. "Isn't Phil just spreading himself all over the landscape? I knew he would just as soon as he made up his mind to bow to the inevitable."

"He's certainly playing the benevolent heavy father to perfection," I said. "I wish I were as sure of what Mother Graham's activities in the kitchen were just now."

Lillian nodded sapiently.

"She came through the door with the contented air of a kitten just finishing a saucer of cream," she said. "That generally means she's just finished polishing Katie off, doesn't it?"

"I'm afraid so," I said nervously. "I suppose I ought to go out and see—"

From the kitchen there came the sound of crashing crockery, and a high-pitched scream—Katie's.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

What Would You Do?

If you were playing a rubber of Bridge with both sides vulnerable and opponents with a part-score of 60, and you heard the opponent on your left open the bidding with one spade, your partner over-call with two diamonds, and the opponent on your right bid two spades—which is a game declaration—what would you do, holding

♠9 ♡AQJ1098 ◇1098764 ♣—

Obviously, the hand must be a freak. It is probable that the voids in your hand are duplicated by voids in the hands of other players around the table. It is, in short, the type of hand which, if the opponents know as much about it as you know, there is likely to be considerable bidding. Seemingly, your partner's vulnerable. Overcall may be as light almost as a cream-puff, and yet five diamonds should be made. Should you now show your six-card heart suit with its honor content, or should you jump to game in diamonds and present a game-saving sacrifice by your opponents? I might say at the beginning that you can dismiss, so far as this hand is concerned, the theory that the Opening bid was shaded or psychic, and thus it seems to me you must give up at once the probability of making a Slam, the success of which, from your angle, might well depend upon two finesses.

The actual hand which forms the basis of this discussion was:

West Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
East-West part-score, 60

The actual bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠	3 ◇ (1)
3 ♠ (2)	Pass	Pass	5 ◇ (3)
Pass	Pass	Double (4)	Pass (5)
Pass	Pass

1—Note that South does not bid the heart suit. There is a fair chance that with a heart bid of less than game he may be permitted to play it. South feels that five diamonds is a certainty and that this contract may very likely be doubled. If the opponents are unaware of any other suit in the North and South hands, it seems much more probable that a Double will follow than if they are also informed of a strong heart suit in South's hand. The bid of three diamonds rather than five diamonds is based upon psychological consideration. East and West's part-score being sufficient urge to induce them to continue the bidding and thus perhaps complete the rubber which is now hanging in the balance.

2—Perhaps West would have been wiser here to have shown his club suit, as with the knowledge of a second suit in the East and West hands, it would appear improbable that South's tactics would succeed.

3—Continuing the strategy outlined in a previous note, South again refuses to disclose his tremendous distributional values as he is now well content to shut out, except at the range of six, any information relative to the club suit.

4—East feels that he holds at least 2 tricks against any adverse contract. His partner has opened the bidding, which theoretically should account for two more. The East hand does not in any way suggest the possibility of a distributional storm, but in any event is too weak to justify a further bid.

5—South is wise not to redouble. West might well then be tempted to bid five spades, and while on a double dummy basis this contract can be defeated at least 2 tricks, the resultant penalty cannot appear worthwhile to the holder of the South hand.

Of course, in the play the hand was made laid down, the only tricks lost being one spade and one diamond.

After the hand was completed South remarked to his partner that he thought he deserved some medal for restraint as it was the first time in his Bridge-playing career that he had failed to show a six-card major suit containing 100 honors.

TODAY'S QUESTION

With a four-card spade suit headed by the Ace-Knave, and Ace-King-Queen-Knave in clubs, is it not best to bid the club suit first?

Answer—No. The higher-ranking suit should be bid first if it is a biddable suit. This allows obtaining a preference-showing bid from partner without increasing the contract when you rebid in the lower-ranking suit.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Painful Wry-Neck Is Sudden in Its Attack

It is not unusual for somebody to awaken in the morning with a severe pain in the neck.

Dr. Copeland

On going to bed there was no pain, but in the morning it is almost impossible to turn the head. The victim holds his head tilted toward the painful side with the chin pointing upward. This is what happens in that uncomfortable condition known as "wry-neck."

Wry-neck, or "torticollis," as it is called by the medical profession, is an inflammation of the muscles of the neck. It may involve both sides of the neck, but as a rule only one side is affected. The inflammation can usually be traced to an exposure to cold or wet.

Perhaps the sufferer falls asleep in a draught or without sufficient bedclothes. He is awakened during the night with a sharp shooting pain in the neck. This is relieved when the head is held in the position I have described. At times the unsuspecting victim may sleep on until morning, when he finds himself stricken. This painful affliction is more alarming than serious. Of course, the suddenness of the attack is more or less bewildering. Fortunately the symptoms soon disappear.

There is a type of torticollis that does not disappear with simple treatment, but requires an operation for complete cure. I refer to that form of wry-neck which can be traced to neglect of inflammation in early childhood. It may be the result of a difficult birth with injury to the muscles of the infant's neck.

If this condition is neglected, the muscles become weak and permanent deformity results. This deformity causes an alteration in the normal position of the spine. Twisting of the head may lead to faulty development of the muscles of the face, with change in facial expression. It may even affect the speech.

May I assure the worried mother that the operation is not a difficult one and need cause no alarm. By a simple procedure the shortened muscle is cut. This allows the head to return to the proper position instead of being pulled to one side.

After the tendon is severed, a plaster of paris bandage is placed around the neck, head and under both arms. This cast keeps the head in normal position, corrects the deformity and allows the cut muscle to heal.

This may sound like a formidable procedure but in reality it is simple. The results are extremely successful and that is the best part of it.

After healing takes place the muscles are massaged. The young victim is instructed in special exercises of the head. These improve the tone and strength of the diseased muscles. Within a short time it is difficult to recognize that the child ever suffered from wry-neck.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Woman Bows

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who bows and speaks first, the man or the woman?

MAN READER.

The woman. The man waits for her to make this acknowledgment of acquaintanceship, just as he waits for her to extend her hand for a handshake.

Correct Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My aunt is having a very informal dinner party for me at her home. She has asked not my boy friend, but he and I are to go together. There will be two other couples there, too. I have gone out with this boy a number of times, and I am very fond of him. He is so mannerly and treats me very nicely when escorting me. Will you kindly tell me how I might ask him to accompany me as my aunt does not know him and she prefers that I invite him.

INTERESTED.

Even if your aunt does think at first that she prefers that you invite this boy to her home to attend the dinner party, I am sure that if she reconsiders and keeps in mind that she is the hostess, not you, she will wish to do the inviting herself. It is most necessary that the invitation come from her. So do speak with her again and tell her that you would be much happier if she extended the invitation. The fact that she does not know him does not make any difference. The fact that she is to be the hostess is the important point. And since this boy is "mannerly" he will, of course, resent your inviting him, for he will wonder why your aunt did not perform so requisite a social affair.

Jewish Council Exhibit Shows Activities

The exhibit of council work as ingeniously arranged by Mrs. Morris Balter and her aides arrested attention at the meeting of Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women in the Y. M. and W. H. A. yesterday. Every branch of council activities—Service Shop, Industrial League, religious schools, work for the deaf and the blind, foreign-born service and all the other branches, even to telephoning and typing, had either counterpart or demonstrations in the exhibits which lined the two long walls of the auditorium.

It was council's first meeting of the season, the only open meeting of the year, and was attended by more than 500 women. Dr. Louis K. Anspacher, dramatist, actor and lecturer, was the speaker. In his entertaining address on "The Spirit of Modern Drama," he contrasted the theatrical of the old plays with the dramatic in the modern, saying the play of today emphasizes character development, whereas the old plays laid stress on situation and plot.

Modern drama, he said, reveals the souls of its characters and adds to the common consciousness of a common life; a revaluation of morals is made in terms of the individual.

Miss Elizabeth Barclay To Marry on Nov. 4

Miss Elizabeth Barclay, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Abram Barclay, of King avenue, has named November 4 as the date for her marriage to William J. Jones II, formerly of Pittsburgh, now of Freeport, La., and son of Mrs. W. J. Jones, of Pittsburgh.

The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock that afternoon in the Highland Presbyterian Church.

Gossipy Chat — By NANCY JANE

Chicken is in disfavor with the debutantes. At everyone of the many luncheons for the debs chicken, either chicken salad, or chicken a la king, or just chicken, has been included in the menu. And peas.

And all our little debs, slender though they be, are worrying about their figures—for the deser' are always loaded with calories—ice cream with whipped cream and other toothsome, but pound-threatening dainties.

The first American flag to fly over the first hotel for American engineers in Panama belongs to the mother of Mrs. Duward Belmont Frampton, petite, pretty Southern Club president.

When the hotel for American engineers was completed, there was no flag. But Mrs. Frampton's mother came to the rescue. To celebrate the opening, she and the only other American woman there made cakes.

And lemonade was served from garbage cans—new ones, I hasten to add, ordered from the commissary.

Likeable, unaffected young Frances Frampton, one of our debs, has her morning slumber interrupted frequently. She often drives her father to the office, then goes back to bed for a few more winks.

SPORTING PROPOSITIONS IN SHOES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF we knew what the score boards recorded and what kind of libation is hidden in the thermos sketched in this football scene we'd have all the dope on gridiron afternoons. For the good-looking girl has on just the right clothes, every accessory—even a polo-coated beau—correct and ready for the fray.

Her suit is a herring-bone tweed, trig and warm but soft enough to sit in comfortably, and extra warmth is added by the contrasting tweed overcoat. Her smart hat has just enough brim to keep her hair in place, but not enough to catch the naughty wind and blow off, and her shoes are a sports opera model which was made for tweed.

With tweeds sweeping the country at this season, shoes that complement them become a major interest to the knowing woman. Just active sports shoes are not enough; one must consider other models good for town or country, and perhaps invest in models that can walk in the village or down the Avenue with equal assurance.

Even suede, which is usually all for the more elegant kind of clothes, makes excellent models to accompany tweeds. In the lower, flatter heels which seems to be gaining feminine favor just now, plain brown suede is very swank. And in brown and other shades, suede oxford, tailored briskly with perforations and bindings of patent, take on a definitely man-tailored look which makes them a bit severe for silk gowns.

Everyone knows of the excellent wearing qualities of reptile shoes, which decline to stub little bits off themselves no matter how much one stumbles around. They look swell in the city or the country, and there is not a costume color that some obliging little snake or lizard will not blend with happily. The ghillie shoe is another prime favorite, which grows less Prince of Wales-y each year and more to the specifications of the well dressed American woman. Ditching the fringed tongue has been a popular move, which puts ghillies in the spectator class.

Above, a sports opera which features the new, lower built-up leather heel, in suede and alligator. Right, suede perforated and corded with patent, in a high oxford.

The ghillie above is a spectator sports model of suede, trimmed with mandrucca calf. The tongue is a moderated 1933 version. Left, a lizard oxford, classic for town and country wear.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS VIEWING THE NEW

Spyglassing up one street and down the next . . . that's what our days consist of . . . and if we are able to bring you items you yearn for through our trottings about, then we shall feel that we have not lived in vain! For information on where to find the items mentioned here today call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass . . . or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

With all the razzle-dazzle attendant upon Halloween and its broom-riding witches comes this special offer from one of the town's better florists: Big Bunches of Straw Flowers and Colored Grasses, for 15c! Each autumn sees the arrival of these about this same time . . . but seldom at this same price! A good way to set off your room or table with their colorful stiffishness!

Cockadoodle - doo . . . get yourselves up and crow over these cocktail trays we discovered for the miserly sum of 10c apiece! Red enamel they are . . . with a black background on which are painted "playing cards," each one of them displaying a different cocktail recipe! (P. S. — We haven't tried the recipes, as yet, but the tray is worth 10c even if they don't work out!)

* * *

Not for nothing is our spyglass screwed up to its last notch of visibility (if that's what you do to spyglasses!). For this time we chanced upon such a worthy item that we just up and clattered back to our trusty typewriter with it in hand that you might get the news while yet fresh! Chinese Grass Linen Bridge Sets are now to be had for $2.75 . . . those beautiful encrusted-with-embroidery ones which are n-ever . . . n-ever sold for such a sum! Four napkins with them of course . . . and tomorrow is none too soon to journey in their direction!

And here's to the shop which is receiving crowns from the extra-size ladies! For loud and long has been the clamor for extra size undies . . . which were REALLY SMART! Hand-made affairs . . . and others . . . undies of every sort for every type . . . and extra sizes—up to 52! Priced as low as $1.65—panties at this price, with gobs of stunning lace . . . and every "pant" made of pure dye silk! Included in the group are gowns, pajamas, combinations, and slips! And all reasonably priced!

Zoo in Pittsburgh . . . Budapest isn't the only place which can lay claim to anything of the kind! Enter the tall and mincing giraffe . . . Jumbo, the elephant . . . as well as several dogs and cats! The whole thundering herd is grazing in the cupboard of a certain gift shop where many such oddities are usually found . . . of painted wood! And they have a purpose in life . . . the giraffe's neck . . . the elephant's trunk . . . and the dogs' and cats' tails are raised aloft awaiting the descent of pretzels. 'After seeing many of the new pretzel pegs, we found these interestingly different! 60c.

If you would look like a "million" . . . but not a million others . . . you'll choose your evening or dinner frock at this shop we are going to expound upon Right Now! Here grow the latest modes, in all the glory of quality fabrics at "shoddy" prices!

One example being a Lady-Woffington's - Carriage - Awaits sort of eggshell transparent velvet with long swathed sleeves, and a most revealing back decolletage! And yet another being a dinner style with the new knee fullness which appears in bunches of gathers and is otherwise plain and straight! And still another . . . the new "Airplane" frock which one of the most recent fashion sources sketched . . . black with yards of blue-green ribbon looped into blobs at the shoulders! WE should say that THIS is why parties are born!

Heiress Sees Town With Actors

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Miss Snowden

In the last week, she has been to the Cotton Club with John Warburton, another recent headline grabber, and to the fashionable Colony Club with Jack La Rue, ertswhile swain of Margaret Lucille and recent admirer of Ida Lupino. La Rue also took the young oil princess to the Paramount studio to get her first glimpse of how movies are made.

Big question now is why all the secrecy when Janet and her guardian, Mrs. Edith Crocket, arrived here on the Santa Teresa. At that time, the heiress dodged ship news reporters, registered at the Ambassador under an assumed name and threatened to give up an expensive suite if a newspaperman so much as knocked at her door or reached the room on the telephone.

Once met, Janet is friendly and talks freely. She told me she came to California expecting to stay two weeks and then to sail for the Orient and to Europe via the Suez Canal. Now, she may stay a month.

Mary McCormic confessed to an interviewer the other day that she may wed a Los Angeles doctor. Could the diva have meant Dr. William H. Rambo, with whom she has been seen on numerous occasions recently?

* * *

The reason Katharine Hepburn made a flying trip from location last week was to see her friend, Laura Harding, who has been quite ill. La Hepburn will bring back a 3-month-old fawn when she returns from making scenes for "Trigger" at Idylwild. The animal's mother was run over and killed by forest rangers. Katharine adopted it and the fawn now eats out of her hand. The actress has set workmen to clearing off a half square block of brush near her hill-top home, which she will have fenced as a pen for her pet.

Miss Hepburn

Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller gave the gossips another case of jitters by disappearing over the week-end, but they went only as far as Palm Springs. The Desert Inn and the Dunes drew a flock of other celebs. Sari Maritza and Bernie Toplitsky had them staring, but they laughed off romance rumors. Buster Collier was squiring the stylish Rita Kaufman and Janet Gaynor came down with her mother and her inseparable companion, Margaret Lindsay.

* * *

James N. Crofton, whose marriage to Mona Rico is on the rocks, was paying much attention to blonde Renee Oaks at the Colony Club the other evening . . . Hollywood producers are giving Damon Runyon a terrific play since the smash hit made by his story, "Lady For A Day." The Hearst sports ace has sold six stories to the movies within the last nine weeks.

Miss English

Biggest excitement in the lobby of the Beverly Wilshire since the night of the earthquake was when Max Baer suddenly strode through the fashionably dressed crowd attired in a pair of boxing trunks and a dressing gown. He hadn't had time to change. Incidentally, Max is having many repeat dates with Kay English, young M-G-M actress . . . The King's Club, with celebs were there for the opening night. And Lila Lee was with Ross Clarke, Jr., again.

Sun, Do Your Stuff!

JEAN WARE OF "FEMALE" GOES TO THE ROOF OF THE STUDIO EVERY DAY BETWEEN SCENES FOR A SUN BATH

Resemblance Helps Girl

Because Adalyn Doyle looks like Katharine Hepburn, she thought she'd call on the actress. Miss Hepburn saw her, and at once gave her a job. It was only as her "stand-in," but Katharine began preaching her cause on her own lot and wherever she went.

She told Adalyn she should be an actress.

She got her screen test—and now Adalyn Doyle is under contract to Twentieth Century, and on the way, possibly, to a stellar position where she will be given a "stand-in" some day. She had a bit in "Blood Money," and her first part is in "Advice to the Lovelorn" with Lee Tracy and Sally Blane.

Adalyn Doyle's resemblance to Katharine Hepburn is striking, not only because it is physical, but because their mannerisms are similar and their voices are both low-pitched. She shares the rather bizarre Hepburn sense of humor, and the Hepburn intensity.

"But our approach to acting is different," says Adalyn, "and on the screen we don't look so much alike."

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The cast of "Mary of Scotland," which will be presented by the Theater Guild in the NAM next week, includes other Shakespearean actors besides Fritz Leiber, who for many years has been doing the plays of the Bard as leading man and as a star at the head of his own company. Philip Merivale, who is co-featured with Helen Hayes and Helen Menken in the new Maxwell Anderson play, also has appeared in many Shakespearean plays, as has Charles Dalton, another member of the Guild acting company that will be here next week. Each claims that no better training school for the stage can be found. "Mary of Scotland" will be the second subscription play of the season. The box office sale of seats will open tomorrow.

The intent of M-G-M to produce "The Merry Widow" as a film and to have some new music written for it impels a Hollywood scribe to observe that it recalls that famous billboard advertising of "The Taming of the Shrew" by William Shakespeare with additional dialogue by Sam Taylor.

Nan Sunderland has been signed to play an important character role in "Trigger," by Lula Vollmer, a coming starring film for Katharine Hepburn. Miss Sunderland, who in private life is Mrs. Walter Huston, will act the part of a mountaineer mother. She was seen with Lionel Barrymore in "Sweepings."

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

An Eye for An Eye

(By Duane Bradley, 1976 North Carolina street, Hollywood, Cal. One of the six best stories in the recent Joe Green column contest.)

JOE GREEN walked slowly in the direction of his home after a pretty dull day. Passing him, you would never give him a second glance. For Joe Green was so essentially the average man that a second glance was never necessary.

Everything about the man spelled the average. The way his clothes fitted him. That plodding look in his eyes. The very manner in which he walked. Average; that was Joe Green. And it was a thousand to one he would go through life exactly as he was.

Helen watched him from the window of their home as he neared the house. She knew he was average and ordinary, and everything that she hated. She knew and was suddenly glad for her one brief revolt against the dull routine of her married life.

She was glad she had taken her week with Larry, even though the world might condemn it as wrong. She was glad that she had been unfaithful to Joe.

They had been together in that very house. One heavenly week that they had been there, while Joe was away on one of his business trips. It was a sin, of course—but why is there so much bliss in sin?

Joe's telegram had arrived that morning, and Larry had hastily packed his bags and left. None had seen him come; none had seen him go. Their secret was safe between them . . .

"I'm so glad you're back, dear," she cried. "I've missed you terribly."

He placed his bags on the floor and smiled at her near-sightedly.

"Did you hon?" he asked. He returned her kiss. She spoke of dinner. He shook his head. No, he'd eaten hours ago on the train. He got his smoking jacket from the hall closet and exchanged it for his coat.

A mild sigh of contentment escaped his lips and he yawned happily.

"Seems good to be home again," he said. "Come on in and sit down with me. It's good to see you again."

Helen sat down beside him on the couch and he put his arm around her. She closed her eyes, and thought of Larry. Suddenly she sat up.

"Don't you want to smoke, dear?" she inquired. Joe grunted. Helen arose to get his pipe—and then remembered. Larry had smoked all of Joe's tobacco, and she had forgotten to get more.

"Gee, Joe," she cried contritely, "I'm sorry. But I knocked the tobacco jar over the other day and I forgot to get more. I'm sorry."

Joe grumbled his reply.

"Gosh, Helen, you oughta be more careful. You might have known I'd want my pipe."

He stared disconsolately in front of him.

Helen looked at him. She hated the way his hair grew too low on his forehead. She hated his bony hands. She hated the whine in his voice. She hated everything about him. How different Larry was! . . .

"Might as well go to bed, I guess," mumbled Joe finally. "Nothing else to do."

Helen wondered uneasily if he had guessed. It was rather unusual for him to be so cross on his first night home. Still, how could he know anything? Nonsense. She smiled.

"All right, dear," she said. "Anything you say. Shall I run a bath for you?"

Joe yawned and stretched mightily.

"Sure, you can if you want to. I'll be in in a minute."

Helen entered the bathroom. She put the plug in the tub and turned on the hot water. Hurriedly she picked up a wash cloth from the floor where Larry had left it, and put a new cake of soap in the soap dish.

She placed fresh towels on the rack and quickly stuffed a stray sock in her pocket. It was one that Larry had forgotten in his hurried leaving. The water was running too hot, and she adjusted the faucets so that the temperature would be more to Joe's liking. She knew now that she hated this man—but the habits of the years were too strong to break in a moment.

When she stepped into the bedroom, Joe was already in his robe.

"Your bath's ready, dear," she said. "I'm going to bed now."

"All right, Helen. I won't be long . . ."

The woman lay between the cool sheets and listened to Joe as he splashed in the tub. Gradually, she relaxed. Joe suspected nothing. He was too dull, too unimaginative, ever to guess that something was wrong. He would never know. She sighed deeply and dozed.

It was almost an hour later when Joe crawled into bed. Helen was too sleepy to open her eyes. Vaguely she reached out her hand for his. Joe clasped her hand warmly, and they lay there together, silent.

Joe was sleepy, too. It had been a dull day, and a tiring one. The train had been slow and dusty and the warm bath had relaxed his tense nerves.

The minutes passed quickly, and Joe, too, began to doze. Soon there was no sound in the room except his breathing and Helen's.

"Good night, Larry," she said.

Joe could hardly hear her. Faintly her words penetrated to his brain. He returned Helen's clasp gently.

"Good night, Dorothy," he said . . .

POLITICS

Taxing Voting Voided By Amendment 5

By MARK SHIELDS

Number 5 in the list of proposed amendments to the state constitution to be voted on November 7 would eliminate the tax qualification for voting. Adoption of this amendment would have a far-reaching effect on future elections in Pennsylvania and so far the dominant political leaders have not declared for it.

Mr. Shields

Should nothing else be accomplished, the amendment might save a lot of political leaders from future indictment or accusation, even though it is true that few go to jail for violation either of the spirit or the letter of the law.

A prerequisite to voting now is possession a receipt showing payment of a state or county tax within two years of the date of an election. This may be a real estate tax or, as is the case with most voters, a poll or occupational tax. It is perhaps the most abused section of the election laws.

Originally the law was designed to confine voting to citizens of substance or those who were sufficiently interested in their government to pay a small premium for the right to participate in its formation at the ballot box. In practice the law has discouraged the person who does not have a sustained interest in politics, and has become a most potent weapon in the hands of political organizations which are able to control the tax machinery.

Many citizens do not care to go through the medium often necessary to obtain a poll tax receipt. They become outraged at being compelled to stand in long and slow moving queues, while machine adherents either are rushed to the front or, as more often happens, have their receipts paid for and delivered without the formality of appearing, a direct violation of the law.

Present System Brings Scandal; Little Revenue

Even in the recent primary the investigations of the Registration Commission have brought allegations that tax receipts were purchased in batches and delivered to citizens who neither had paid for them nor asked for them, but who were expected to vote for the candidates supported by generous politicians.

The regular Republican organization, which has lost control of the Allegheny County Tax Board, charged it with refusing to place on the tax rolls persons entitled to be there, or striking off bona fide names after they had been enrolled. In other years the organization has been the target of similar accusations.

There have been charges that control of the Treasurer's office was a tremendous advantage to a particular faction, and that the procurement of tax receipts for its favorites was facilitated. There have been claims that sheafs of receipts were written outside of regular office hours and delivered to ward heelers for distribution to their followers.

The whole system has brought little more than scandal, certainly comparatively little in the form of net revenue for the benefit of the ordinary and legitimate operations of the government.

If the amendment is adopted—and it has been urged for years by independents of all parties—voting will become free, and citizens not attached professionally or semi-professionally to politics should more widely participate in the government.

There would, of course, continue to be registration in the cities and enrollment in the boroughs and townships, with the registrant susceptible to investigation if he was thought to be misrepresenting his residence or eligibility on any score.

Achieves Concrete Borrowing Basis

Amendment No. 6 would permit increase in the borrowing capacity of Allegheny and other counties from 7 to 10 per cent, and Philadelphia from 10 to 15 per cent of assessed valuations. But at the same time the limits are increased the assessed value is confined to real estate, and not to real estate and personal property, as at present.

Actually there would be little increase in the borrowing capacity of any county. The principal end served would be to determine a plain assessed value of taxable property instead of leaving the matter in doubt, as it always will be so far as part of the limit is dependent on the amount of taxable personable property.

Personal property values are tangible, but difficult of ascertainment, and in many counties no effort is made to find the total. Allegheny County Commissioners attempted this year to collect 100 per cent on this tax, but came far from the expectation, as there must be reliance upon the responsibility of the individual to disclose the full amount of his personal property.

It was this action which resulted in a confused and abortive legislative effort to abolish the personal property tax, the result being merely to transfer the source of collections against bank deposits, and make the collection certain—an end which was sought to be averted rather than achieved.

Adoption of this amendment might indirectly result in repeal of the personal property tax. In essence, the amendment achieves a concrete rather than an intangible basis for borrowing.

This is the third of a series dealing with proposed amendments to the State Constitution.

BUILDING GROUP ASKS SCHOOL TAX SLASH

Organization Joins in Demand as Budget Rises By $132,262

Faced with the proposed 1934 school budget, $132,262.85 higher than in 1933, the Building Owners' and Managers' Association today urged a tax reduction of 1½ mills below the 11¾ mills last year.

The action marked the second organization to make a new demand for reduced school taxation. A resolution urging a reduction was submitted to the Board of Public Education at its session yesterday by the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League.

The Building Owners based the possible tax reduction on an increase in collection of current and delinquent taxes, opposing the issuing of a bond issue to resume building operations and urging a special committe be named to study the best methods for tax collections.

HEARING REFUSED

The latter group would be composed of three school board members, three members from the general public and the City Controller. The group offered the services of its taxation committee, headed by J. W. Bamford, to aid the board outline a definite policy.

Refusing I. Leonard Aronson, president of the taxpayers' organization, permission to address the board yesterday, Marcus Aaron, school board head, said the board would open budget meetings next Monday at 4 p. m. and would welcome written suggestions. No verbal communications will be received by the budget committee until its work is completed and a special hearing arranged.

REFUSES PINCHOT MOVE

However, before the board members had an opportunity to leave their seats after adjournment, Aronson asked President Aaron:

"Will the school board ask the Governor to support a plan to remove school taxes from real estate at the special session?"

Aaron replied:

"We are adjourned. That is not business for this meeting, but I can certainly say that the board will do no such thing."

Aronson told the Sun-Telegraph:

"We will attend the budget hearings. We believe this idea of making real estate bear the entire burden of school taxes is wrong and we'll fight it."

The taxpayer organization's resolution asking for a school tax rate reduction was referred to the finance committee.

COSTS OUTLINED

It will require $13,867,372.94 to operate the city's schools during 1934, according to the budget statement.

Farther discouragement of hope of a reduction in the school tax rate is seen in the report that the state's appropriation to the Pittsburgh school district will be reduced by about $75,000 for 1934 and $150,000 for 1935.

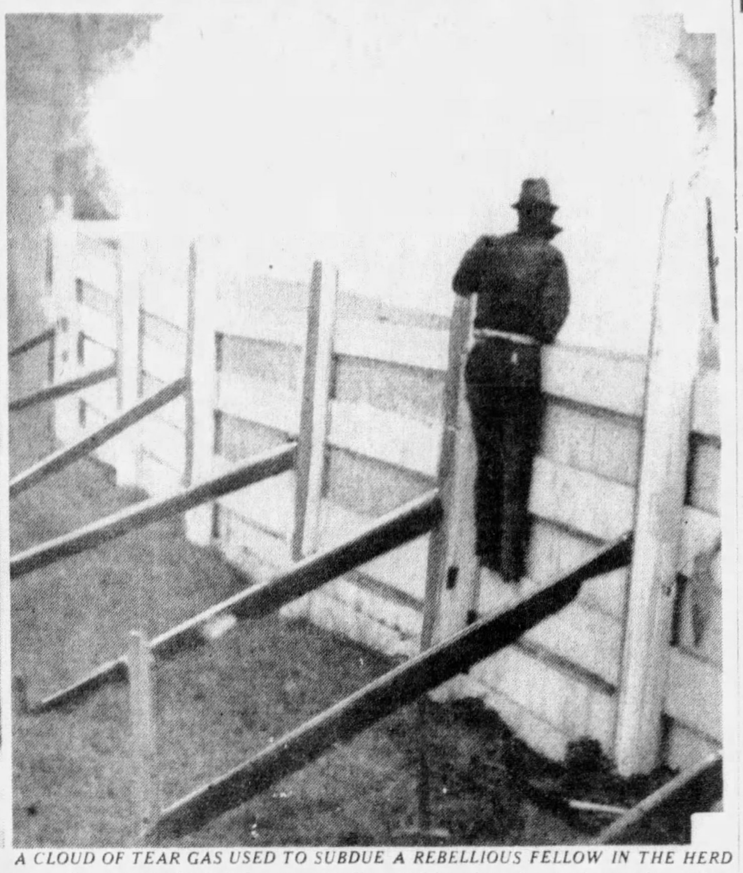
COUNTY PARK POLICEMEN PREPARING A BUFFALO FOR AN INOCULATION

Activity at North Park as county park policemen pitched in to help a veterinarian round up the herd of buffaloes for inoculation to guard against the death by infection that killed one of them last week. The buffaloes, you see, objected.



A CLOUD OF TEAR GAS USED TO SUBDUE A REBELLIOUS FELLOW IN THE HERD

Tear gas in the buffalo pens as police used iron bars, lassoes to corral and tie down the buffaloes, one by one, for a veterinarian to give them the needle to save them from probable death from the infection. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Park Buffalo Loses Battle With Science

Untamed Bull Gets Inoculation After Long Siege

Peace reigns today in the savage heart of Monsieur X, unnamed, untamed renegade of Allegheny County's North Park buffalo herd.

After a two-day siege, during which the wily creature matched his outraged dignity, speed and strength against the combined wits of half a dozen mounted county police and helpers with ropes and pitchforks and tear-gas bombs, he was corralled and inoculated by Dr. Albert W. Pfarr, veterinarian.

Driven in from the hills yesterday by mounted police and yipping, nipping police dogs, Monsieur X put up a stiff two-hour battle before he could be wedged into the narrow stall.

As the dogs and mounted men urged him toward the corral, stout ropes shut off his retreat. The boarded fence around the corral resounded from his sturdy hoofs, and more than one board gave way before the vicious upthrust of his horns. Two armed police kept their guns pointed at him in case he broke loose.

When tear gas seemed to phase him but little, and handfuls of apples thrown temptingly near him were ignored, a straw-stuffed effigy was used to lure him stallward. Time and again the straw man was tossed contemptuously heavenward.

Then a policeman got a rope around his neck and the giant bull was played with Izaak Waltonian technique. Each time he charged forward the rope was tightened until a final charge brought him within the narrow confines of the stall.

The actual inoculation took but a few minutes; a sponge and a thrust of the needled syringe and Monsieur X was released to join the herd. He snorted and shook his huge head at such goings on.

In 10 days the inoculations of the herd of 12 buffaloes will be repeated, park attendants said.

M'NAIR PARADER DIES IN CRASH

One man was killed and two others injured as they and a dozen others leaped from a truck when the driver lost control of it during the South Side parade for William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty nominee in Arlington avenue last night.

The dead man was Charles Kelly, 59, of 1716 Fox way, South Side. He suffered a fractured skull and was dead on arrival at South Side Hospital. The injured, treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises, were John Kaudla, 37, of 2808 Carson street, and John Roach, 42, of 1727 Carey way.

As the truck, driven, police say, by Charles Ratay, of 3245 Arlington avenue, became unmanageable on the grade, all but one of the men leaped into the street. The truck came to a stop after colliding with a machine driven by Albert Schwartz, of 2912 Spring street, police said.

The paraders were en route to the Democratic meeting at Liberty Hall, Josephine and South Twenty-sixth streets. Ratay was arrested and turned over to the Coroner.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 25.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Roosevelt is the only man who can raise the stock market without putting up any money.

Will Rogers

The market not only operates on O. P. M. (other people's money), but O. P. R. (other people's rumors).

A war in Europe would mean nothing to the stock market, (provided it actually happened), but let a rumor get out that Mr. Ford was building a six-door sedan, or that the present government was going to recognize Tammany Hall, or that Bernard Baruch was growing a beard, any of these rumors and wheat would jump 10 points, American Can 8, American T. and T. 9.

So the only thing that can break the stock market is a fact.

Yours, WILL.

M'Nair, Malone Score Herron Financial Claim

Cruel Senate Tries to Divorce Congenial Pair

-By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER-

Senate's determination to divorce crime from politics looks like an attempt to break up a happy couple.

Senate discovers we loaned Cuba 80,000,000 expanded dollars. Whether the garage be locked or open the hoss will never come back.

Senate has invited Sam Insull home again for the holidays. That's polishing the dull hours.

The Senate sees all like a weekly news reel. It works under high pressure. It sends every bill back to the House before the President sends it back to the Senate.

The Senate is engaged in a business that is now serious. Ninety-six men must save the nation. First, the Senate okays a thing and then it investigates it.

'City Broke,' Meeting Told; Graded Tax Plan Favored

Mayor John S. Herron's claims to have guided Pittsburgh in financial supremacy were attacked on two fronts at a Democratic mass meeting in Peabody High School last night.

Such credit as the city has is due, William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty candidate, declared, not to Mayor Herron and his group but to the local tax system.

James F. Malone, defeated councilmanic candidate, stated flatly that the city was broke.

Speaking before an audience of some 600, McNair said the city had so far been able to weather the depression largely because of the graded tax law. But even that, he stated, could not long save it, if the "reckless extravagance" of the present administration continued.

GRADED TAX PLAN

He advocated extension of the graded tax principle to schools and county, and further exploitation of the city's economic rent.

Arriving just after the meeting had broken up, Malone was able to rally about half the audience back into the auditorium.

Stating that the city now owes close to $3,000,000, Malone predicted a deficit of two and one-half to three and one-half million in this year's budget.

The week after primary, Herron had to borrow $750,000 to pay this month's salaries, he said, predicting another levy for the same amount immediately after the general election.

'THE CITY'S BROKE'

Pittsburgh bonds have always sold at a premium, he said, on credit which Herron didn't create. Asking what good it was to have credit when you couldn't back it up, he stated:

"We haven't reached our last dollar, but we're close to it. The city's broke."

Among other speakers were John J. Kennedy, candidate for Common Pleas Court; John M. Huston, for Council, and former magistrate, A. D. Brandon.

FAILS TO SHOW HAND DESPITE PRESSURE

League Members Grow Impatient in Face Of Silence

By MARK SHIELDS

The position of Councilman P. J. McArdle in the present mayoralty campaign has become a subject of increasing interest in politics.

Mr. McArdle, defeated for the mayoralty nomination in the Republican primary, has remained silent as man after man of the Citizens' League, which supported him, has switched to William N. McNair, the Democratic candidate, rather than to Mayor John S. Herron, Republican.

Extreme pressure has been brought upon Mr. McArdle by some of his former backers to string along with them in the McNair campaign. So far his only response has been that he has not yet decided what he is going to do. It is reliably understood that some of the Citizens' League members are impatient with the Councilman, and are approaching regret for taking him up in the primary.

It is reported that since his defeat Mr. McArdle has exhibited no appreciation for the support given him by some members of the league who made his indorsement possible. Democrats are understood to be anxious to have his indorsement more as a gesture of solidarity by Mayor Herron's primary opponents than as the probable delivery of any substantial bloc of votes to McNair.

SERVE AS MASS MEETING

But a statement by Mr. McArdle at this time would serve the Democrats as well as would a mass meeting. That has been one of the principal gains from the series of statements made by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, James F. Malone, William P. Witherow and other members of the Citizens' League.

Without the cost or confusion of a meeting, the statements have gained wide publicity because their utterance was not cluttered and confused by the pronouncements of the usual oratorical double octets.

Democrats are inclined to reckon the statement of Mr. Witherow yesterday as the most valuable statement made in their behalf. Political observers generally pronounced it stronger than that of Mr. Mackrell, who dealt mainly in state issues. It is admitted, however, that in actual and personal shepherding of votes Mr. Mackrell furnished the greater assistance.

HERRON PHILOSOPHY

The entire contribution has served to speed up a campaign which was limping and has turned on the heat among followers of the respective camps. Mayor Herron took cognizance of this yesterday in an apt bit of philosophy at a headquarters meeting. He urged his supporters to be friendly, even though their neighbors were on the other side of the political fence.

He pointed out that they would have to live together after election day, and that there was no

HOTEL RAIDED DOWNTOWN

Gus Sturgis, said to be the proprietor of a hotel and restaurant at 211 Grant street, was held in the county jail today on a morality charge.

County detectives, led by Frank Ritz and Michael Ford, raided his establishment late yesterday. Sturgis was held for court at a hearing before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan.

They charged three girls were loitering in the restaurant and approaching men on the street. The girls will be boarded in the jail to appear as witnesses.

Mansfield Killed Guard Bill, McGovern Charges

In a heated argument yesterday County Commissioner C. C. McGovern accused Commissioner W. D. Mansfield of having killed a piece of his legislation during the last session of the Legislature.

Mansfield had refused to join McGovern and Commissioner C. M. Barr in approving a $500 lumber bill contracted by the 308th Cavalry for stable repair. McGovern said:

"I had legislation which would have cleared up such things. Forty-nine Senators approved it, and it was also approved in the House. Then it was vetoed. The Attorney General told me you had asked him to have it vetoed."

McGovern referred to a bill to permit the County Commissioners to make appropriations to National Guard units. It had a retroactive clause to permit the Commissioners to pay part of the expenses of the reserve officers' convention here in 1932. McGovern explained the former Board of County Commissioners had promised $7,500 toward the convention.

The city failed to keep an agreement to pay a like sum, and Mansfield then refused to support the payment. McGovern and Barr paid the costs after eliminating some entertainment items.

Mansfield yesterday said he had voted against the bill because it was unconstitutional, asserting the Commissioners lacked legal right to make appropriations for National Guard expenses.

As to the convention expenses, he pointed out that a cocktail shaker was included. He said to McGovern:

"I am entitled to my own opinion. You never told me you were for the bill."

COUNTY, FACED WITH DEFICIT, MAY BORROW

Faced with a $1,000,000 deficit, Allegheny County officials today began making plans to borrow money to run the county the rest of the year, directly from a bank or through a bond issue. Delinquent taxes for 1933 probably will total approximately $9,000,000, or $1,000,000 more than last year.

When the County Commissioners prepared their budget and set the tax levy last April, they based their estimates on a 75 per cent collection of taxes. However, collections to date have run only 68 per cent, or 5 per cent less than estimated.

PROPOSES LOAN

County Commissioner C. M. Barr called the attention of the board to the county's financial condition yesterday and suggested the Commissioners issue bonds or borrow from a bank on the delinquent taxes.

At the office of County Controller Robert G. Woodside it was estimated it would require approximately $1,000,000 to run the county the rest of the year.

Barr suggested that it would be better to sell bonds, thus escaping the higher rate of interest a banking house or bond company would charge. He also pointed out that it would be possible to spread retirement of the bonds over a period of years. He said he was satisfied that the bonds would find a ready market.

FAVORS SMALL BONDS

McGovern said he was in favor of letting the bonds be issued in small denominations and sold "over the counter" to permit county residents to invest.

The Commissioners asked the Controller for a complete financial report on the available money, the amount of delinquent taxes and a debt statement which must be offered with the sale of bonds.

FLOYD GIBBONS TO TALK HERE

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, will be one of the speakers at the annual testimonial dinner of the Amen Corner in the William Penn Hotel, Saturday, November 4, Eugene Connelly, general chairman, said today.

Mr. Connelly went to New York to invite Gibbons to the testimonial to the retiring president of the Corner, William M. Furey. Besides Gibbons, Raymond Moley, leader of the President's "brain trust," and Philip LaFollette, former Governor of Wisconsin, will be present.

Other speakers will include Judge Frank P. Patterson, Leo G. Griffith and Dr. Clinton E. Lloyd.

SCHOOL APPEAL IN PAGEANT

Carrying out its educational policy, the Board of Public Education yesterday authorized Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, to arrange for a pageant marking the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of public schools in Pennsylvania.

Episode 10 of the outline for the pageant, as prepared by the staff of the Board of Education, defines this warning:

"The handwriting on the wall warns the citizens of Pittsburgh that they cannot stop, they must struggle on. They must not endanger the public school system through the evils of the time; such as false economy, greed, political entanglements and the many stumbling blocks set in the pathway of the system to bewilder the unsuspecting citizens by promises of reduction in taxes and economic readjustments."

BOROUGHS FIGHT AMENDMENTS

The Associated Municipalities of Southwestern Allegheny County is opposed to four of the 12 state amendments to be voted on at the coming election. The amendments disapproved at last night's meeting are the second, providing for possible assessment for highway improvements on abutting property; the third, empowering the General Assembly to prescribe the nature and kind of investments for trust funds; the fourth, a bond issue for compensation of state war veterans, and the twelfth, a bond issue to buy bridges on which the state will charge toll.

use building up animosities which would be lasting. He added:

"After election, Mr. McNair and myself will shake hands. The big leaders of both sides will shake hands. It is only the little fellows who get hurt and who are affected by grudges after a campaign."

That is the whole story of the at least semi-bi-partisanism of politics, which with the leaders is a profession rather than a crusade.

INCONGRUITIES

Incongruities are beginning to stick up their heads in the campaign, as they do in all political contests. Senator James J. Coyne and Mayor Herron poked a bit of fun at William A. Magee last Friday night, though Mr. Magee had been strong enough in the primary to win a place on the Republican ticket. It exhibited resentment that he had accepted a Democratic nomination also, and the incident denied the attempt of some Republicans to drive home the thought that Mr. Magee's action was unimportant.

The declaration of Mr. Witherow for McNair and the Democratic Council ticket would muzzle some Democratic speakers if there was consistency in politics, for it is incongruous for candidates to appreciate aid from the very source they have diatribed—incongruous but not unusual, and by no means confined to any party.

FILLIP OF FUN

Mr. Witherow was a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, which lauded the Legislature for killing old age pensions. Two of those who fought manfully for old age pensions, and thus were criticised by the Chamber, were Representatives John J. Kane and Thomas J. Gallagher, now Democratic Council candidates, and who upon occasion have scored the Chamber heavily for its statement.

Mr. Witherow now lauds them highly. The man in the street might think that there had been a change of sentiment somewhere.

But that isn't fair, though it does add its fillip of fun. Kane and Gallagher are the same, and Mr. Witherow, it is understood, never fully indorsed the attitude of the Chamber of Commerce, and did not fully realize the purport of its declaration.

However, an opposing candidate could have some fun with the situation, and at the same time fail to perceive the incongruities in his own attitude.

Physician Called To Stop Class' Mass Giggling

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—First one girl giggled, then another, and then a third. Soon 14 were in the throes of giggling and teachers in a study room at Champion Junior High school were unable to stop it. The principal called a doctor. He said:

"Very common. It's group hysteria."

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

FLAMES WRECK WAREHOUSE

A one-story frame warehouse in the Pennsylvania Railroad freight yards, Penn and Fifth avenues, was destroyed by fire which illuminated Point Breeze last night.

The flames, fanned by a strong wind, leaped high and threatened two other frame warehouses. Firemen drenched their roofs to prevent sparks igniting them.

The burned building was vacant. Cut stone for the new East Liberty Presbyterian Church was stored in one of the others. The third, vacant, is used as a menagerie by circuses.

QUAKE SHAKES LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—(AP.) The foothill section surrounding Los Angeles on the north and east was jarred sharply by an earthquake at 11 p. m. last night.

The shock was felt to a lesser degree in the metropolitan district of Los Angeles.

No injury and practically no damage was reported.

Dr. Harry Wood, of the seismological laboratory of the Carnegie Institute of Pasadena, reported the epicenter of the quake was near Pasadena. That city Glendale and Burbank reported having felt the quake strongly.

COUNTY SPEEDS VOTE MACHINE PREPARATION

Determined to use every vote machine that can be conditioned by November 7, the County Commissioners have ordered Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank to give all his time to assisting Director William T. Rees of the Elections Bureau, and also hired deputy custodians, machinists, laborers and vote machine inspectors.

Thirty-nine deputy custodians, 60 laborers and 14 machinists and vote machine inspectors were ordered placed on the county rolls yesterday by the commissioners. This followed the commissioners' agreement to use machines in the three third class cities and in at least the first 10 wards of Pittsburgh. If additional machines are available, they will be put into service in the city.

The Commissioners also stood by their previous resolution not to print ballots in the districts where voting machines are to be used. The ballots will be printed from the Eleventh to the Thirty-second Wards, inclusive, but if machines are made available for additional wards, the ballots will be withheld and perhaps destroyed.

BOARD'S ADVICE IRKS M'GOVERN

The County Commissioners would appreciate advice from the taxpayers, but they don't relish it coming from boards of trade or the Chamber of Commerce, they made plain yesterday.

Their views were aired when Attorney Max U. Applebaum, representing the Allied Boards of Trade, protested purchase of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel for a traffic outlet.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield asked Applebaum if the Allied Boards would oppose the purchase if it didn't cost the taxpayers anything. Applebaum replied:

"I think they would."

Mansfield said the federal government would provide the money and if Pittsburgh didn't take advantage of it some other community would.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern interjected:

"For years people have been relying on the Boards of Trade and that hunco Chamber of Commerce that make statements not worth a thing. We should let the fellow who votes and pays taxes express his opinion."

Conference to Urge Passage of Relief Bond Issue

Hundreds of political, business, civic and professional leaders have been invited to the luncheon of the Hospital Conference of Pittsburgh next Tuesday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The city's leaders will be brought face to face with the impending crisis in hospital care of the unemployed. The proposed $25,000,000 bond issue for unemployed, hospital and educational relief, which will appear on the ballot in the November election as Amendment No. 8, will be discussed at length at the meeting.

The need for including hospitals in Gov. Pinchot's special call to the Legislature will also be discussed. Dr. Maitland Alexander, president of Allegheny General Hospital, and who will be toastmaster at the meeting, in a statement said:

"We are at the point where our hospitals are about to fail the public. Nobody wants them to—and yet, through neglect, they are in danger of failing. Probably the reason is that they have been expected to stand by, without help, through four years of depression.

"The same economic forces which have wrecked business have paralyzed the hospitals, which today are unable to continue giving adequate care to the sick poor and unemployed without further help.

"Part of this help will be afforded if the relief bond issue is passed by the voters on November 7. There is no real opposition to this, but there is always danger from apathy, ignorance or neglect. The measure will restore to the hospitals of the state $2,231,365 cut from their appropriations after the last legislative session."

LIQUOR RACKET DOOM URGED

Legislation for state control of liquor after repeal of prohibition was discussed at meetings of hotel men, druggists and representatives of other groups in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. The keynote of the meetings was "a program to change the liquor trade from a racket into a legitimate business."

A committee representing the Allegheny County Retail Druggist Association considered phases of taxation and sale of liquor, while similar subjects were discussed by representatives of the Pennsylvania State Hotel Association, which opens a convention here Friday.

All groups were united upon the three principal aims of the programs—to drive the bootlegger out of business, keep the price of good liquor low, and to avoid excessive taxation.

WASH-JEFF LOOMS AS DANGEROUS FOE FOR TECH

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

WILAMOWSKI, HB. GRANDOVIC, FB. PERRECELLI, HB. MICHELOSEN, QB.

Powerful backfield of the Ambridge High School eleven, defending champion in Class A of the W. P. I. A. L., getting up steam for its important battle with Aliquippa, its rival from across the river, Saturday afternoon. If the Bridgers, who have won 14 straight games, including five in a row this season, can take the measure of Aliquippa, they will be in a good position to finish their second successive season undefeated. Perrecelli is the leading scorer of the Beaver Valley high schools. Moe Rubenstein, coach at Ambridge, and Nate Lippe, coach at Aliquippa, both are graduates of Geneva College and the athletic rivalry between the two young coaches and the two Beaver Valley towns is extremely intense. Unjust to Belittle Deeds. Yost Ranks Regeczi Best.
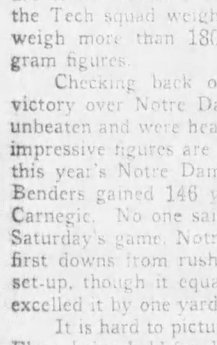
Irish Equal Gains of 1926. Ring Rivals in Third Bout.

FINE COACHING JOB CONFOUNDS EXPERTS

Carnegie Tech people still are bewildered because of the tendency of many football fans to ascribe the Plaid's victories of 1933 to weakness or off days of the opposition. It strikes Tartan folk, as it strikes all fair-minded grid followers, that it would be doing greater justice to give the Schenley Park lads some extra credit and attribute the results to the fact that the Carnegie team is stronger than it was expected to be. The Skibos started the current season minus 12 letter men from the 1932 squad, and they faced such a difficult schedule that they were conceded a chance to win only two or three of their games. The Scots simply were not supposed to win, and every time they do, some expert looks bad.



Don Lovewell

The truth is that the Carnegie coaches have done an exceptional job. Howard Harpster has been able to fashion a surprising backfield from material that, on size and weight, would not look any too impressive to even a high school coach. And Don Lovewell has taken a substitute end of 1932 and made him into a regular tackle, turned Bunny Burzio into the outstanding guard of the year, and moved Jerry O'Toole from the backfield to center to make the Tech line the best defensive unit in the school's history. Were Ray Tesser and Wilbur Plummer, two of those no longer eligible, still available this fall, with the former's punting ability to get the club out of the tight spots in which poor kicking has placed it so far, it can be imagined what a forward wall the Plaid would have.

GREAT COACHING WITH LIGHT MATERIAL

Carnegie supporters believe that one of the finest pieces of coaching work ever known around here has been done on their campus this fall, regardless of the future success or failure of the Tartan machine. Exactly half of the 32 players on the Tech squad weigh less than 175 pounds, and only seven weigh more than 180. And that's actual weight, not program figures.

Checking back on the statistics of Carnegie's famous victory over Notre Dame in 1926, when the Irish came here unbeaten and were headed for the national championship, some impressive figures are provided for the benefit of detractors of this year's Notre Dame team. In the 1926 game, the South Benders gained 146 yards and made six first downs against Carnegie. No one said that Irish team was a set up. In last Saturday's game, Notre Dame gained 147 yards and made six first downs from rushing plays. Yet this team was called a set-up, though it equaled the one of 1926 in first downs and excelled it by one yard in ground gained.

It is hard to picture the 1933 Notre Dame team, with Don Elser, being held for downs six inches from the goal line. Yet that very thing happened to the great Irish machine of 1926 in its meeting with Carnegie.

YOUNG WRIGLEY LIKELY TO BE CUB PREXY

Bill Benswanger, of the Pirates, and Louis Comiskey, of the White Sox, probably will have another to share with them the distinction of being the youngest club presidents in the major baseball leagues. Though the directors of the Chicago National League Club, at their recent meeting, failed to name a successor to William L. Veeck, and announced that the vacancy will not be filled until January, Chicago reports indicate that Philip K. Wrigley, son of the late William Wrigley, Jr., and chief owner of the Cubs, will assume the presidency.

P. K. Wrigley

Young Wrigley says he doesn't want to take the post, that he has too many other things to do, but a situation has developed on the club that may lead to his being "drafted." And that he is beginning to realize he may have to take the seat is indicated by his admission that he plans to attend the minor league convention in Galveston, Tex., next month as one of the representatives of the Bruins.

REGECZI BEST PUNTER YOST EVER SAW

Good as he was in 1932, Johnny Regeczi, Michigan's great kicker, must be even better this season, judging from the change that Fielding Yost has made in his rating. For whereas last year Regeczi was referred to by the famous old coach as the best punter since Harry Kipke, Yost now pronounces him the best he ever saw.

And if the great kicker's name stumps you, it's pronounced Ray-GET-chee, with the accent on the second syllable.

ANOTHER GIBSON CRITIC NOW SUPPORTER

The following was received from "A Woman Fan," whose letter criticizing Manager George Gibson, of the Pirates, was published last week:

"This is 'The Woman Fan' speaking again. After reading your splendid defense of Mr. Gibson, I was rather ashamed of my complaint against him, and now that the matter is settled I am for him. I hope every knocker will become a booster, not only for the manager, but for the team as well, and that we shall all be sitting in at the 1934 World Series in Pittsburgh.

"I have lived in New York and Chicago, and rooted for the home team in both cities. Even in those days I used to hear that some Pittsburghers were fair-weather fans—FOR their club when it was winning, and AGAINST it when it was losing. It is true, but I think it is because we are so anxious to see the team win. We are not satisfied to be anywhere but at the top."

THIRD ROSS-CANZONERI FIGHT PROPOSED

The boxing world may not have heard the last of that lightweight championship argument between Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri. Ross first won the title from Canzoneri in 10 rounds in Chicago, and then decisioned it successfully against Tony in 15 rounds at New York. Each time the former champion and his followers disputed the decision, and the outcome of the latest protest may be a third meeting of the rivals in New York on December 4, as the feature of a Christmas Fund charity show.

Barney Ross

The promoters originally planned to present Max Schmeling in a heavyweight bout, but Schmeling will not come back to this country until after the first of the year, if he ever returns, so Ross has been signed instead to meet a foe not yet named. Kid Chocolate was mentioned as an opponent, but the New York boxing powers have ruled that the Keed must first defend his featherweight title against his contender, Lou Salica of Newark. If Canzoneri defeats Chocolate, Tony probably will get a return shot at his old championship, unless the weight row that is blocking a proposed non-title match between Ross and Billy Petrolle is overcome. Ross wants Petrolle to make 140 pounds and Billy is holding out for 142.

NOTRE DAME'S FALL EXPECTED BY CASEY

Carnegie Tech over W. & J.
Columbia over Penn State.
Fordham over Alabama.
Georgia over N. Y. U.
Penn over Navy.
Army over Yale.
Harvard and Dartmouth a toss-up.

By EDDIE CASEY

Member All-America Board of Football. Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

Many and many a coach this week is worrying about the game to come on Saturday because last week so many favorites fell from their lofty stations. To lose two major games in a row is devastating to any team, and so the mentors who took a licking last week will be working feverishly to regain the winning stride.

Eddie Casey

The biggest shock of last week was to see Notre Dame fall before Carnegie Tech. And yet, how can they be expected to continue victorious year in and year out? Every college has its ups and downs, and the wonder to me is that Notre Dame has stayed up there so long. Saturday's defeat may inspire the South Benders to great victories this season, and if that happens, then the loss just experienced will have been well worth while.

Columbia toppled before the sturdiest of foes in Princeton. Penn lost a close one to Dartmouth. Harvard bowed before valiant Holy Cross. Cornell again bit the dust. And so it goes from week to week. The favorite of today is on the slide tomorrow, and there is scarcely a big game these days that can be forecasted with absolute certainty.

VIOLETS IMPROVING

On Saturday the New York college teams will go into intersectional games. New York University pits up against the rugged Georgia team, and I fear for the Violets. But the encouraging thing for the New Yorkers is the way they are improving weekly. Andy Kerr's Colgate outfit was lucky to get away with that last one, and I think New York University is on the way up the ladder again. However, they are not quite ready yet, and Georgia should win.

I believe Columbia will get back in the win column, but it has a real contest on its hands as Penn State is coming fast. Villanova will take Manhattan. Fordham will win its game with Alabama. The Rams are riding high and look to be able to stay up there.

There are two games of great importance in the East this week. First, Yale against the Army at New Haven. This should be a thriller, and the outcome is very doubtful. Army has won all its games so far, last week beating a good Illinois team. Yale has won all its games, last Saturday beating a good Brown team. Both teams have head coaches in their first year at the helm, and for both it is a critical point.

ARMY FAVORED OVER YALE

Somehow I am inclined to the Army. It seems to me that the Army is arriving faster than the Bulldogs. The Cadets have fine man-power and great running backs. They play a great defensive game and are hard to score on. On the other hand, Yale has backs equally good, but the team as a whole gathers momentum slowly. The Elis in November would be a different story against the Army, but as the season is only half way along I am picking the Army.

Harvard and Dartmouth is a traditional major game in New England. This is one game that is not exceeded anywhere in enthusiasm. It will be hard fought, and it will see much brilliant football. Dartmouth has yet to lose, Harvard has lost to Holy Cross

Prexies' Physician Real Veteran Of Team

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The real "veteran" of the Washington and Jefferson College football team is Dr. J. F. Donohoe, volunteer team physician, who has seen every W. and J. game for 20 years.

The forthcoming Saturday's clash with Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh will be Dr. Donohoe's one hundred and ninety-sixth consecutive contest. A special "Donohoe Celebration" is planned for November 25, at Lewisburg, as that day's game with Bucknell will be the physician's two hundredth.

GRAD, KORNICK STAND OUT IN CITY LEAGUE

By JULIUS LEVIN

The City High School League, divided into two sections, each of which includes six schools, boasts two outstanding triple-threat football stars in Johnny Grad, halfback and fullback of South, leader in Section I, and Bob Kornick, quarterback of the Perry eleven, defending city champion and a contender for the Section II crown this season.

Both South and Perry have enjoyed unusual football success so far this season, which can be traced to the brilliant exploits of Grad and Kornick, both of whom compare favorably with the greatest football stars ever developed in the Walsh circuit.

GRAD LEADS ATTACK

Grad is the key man in the South High School attack this season. He passes with deadly accuracy, one of the reasons the Orioles have one of the most feared aerial attacks in the City League. He can punt with the best of them and his ground-gaining ability as a ball-carrier leaves nothing to be desired.

South has scored three successive victories in the Section I race this season and is in an excellent position to clinch the divisional

Such Fun! Plaid Gets Kick Out of Irish Game

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach, All-America Quarterback, 1928

Many interesting and odd conversations took place during our game with Notre Dame last Saturday, of which I knew nothing until I had a chance to talk with our players after the game.

Bunny Burzio tells one on our 162-pound center, Steve Trbovitch. Shortly after the Notre Dame first team came on the field, early in the first quarter, we regained possession of the ball and Kitty Gorman, Notre Dame captain, lined up opposite Steve. But let Burzio tell it.

Said Gorman to our Steve, according to Burzio:

Then, on the first or second play, Steve found a couple of hands in his face after he had passed the ball, both of which may or may not have got there by accident. Said Steve to the Notre Dame captain:

"Oh, a tough guy, eh? Well listen to me Kitty, I'm just a young fellow and haven't been in the big city long, but I want you to remember one thing. In a few minutes you will be passing that ball between your legs with your head down, and my advice to you is to cover up."

From that time on the two centers had no more accidents.

PILNEY IS TRAPPED

Pilney, the great Irish halfback threat, had anything but a pleasant afternoon. He came running onto the field in the second quarter, following a 15-yard clipping penalty on a Notre Dame halfback. Our captain, Red Stewart, checked each substitute as he entered, and, after Pilney had reported, Red watched him closely, as he knew he was a good runner and would be coming at his end soon, and he wanted a good look at him. Red, standing some 10 or 15 yards away from Pilney, saw him talking to some of the Notre Dame players before the first play had been called, and he immediately asked the referee if he had seen Pilney talking. He replied he hadn't, but one of the other officials, who was in a better position, said that he had, so Notre Dame was given another 15-yard penalty for a substitute talking before a play had been run.

After the game, one of our boys told me he was standing next to Pilney and all he had said was:

"Come on now, fellows, let's go."

Which could have been a signal from the bench, but more likely was an innocent attempt to pep up his teammates. Stewart was right on the job in getting the penalty. Pilney carried the ball on the first play for a good gain, but he was tackled so hard that he had to leave the game.

'DISGUISED IRISHMAN'

"Aw, go on and soak your head—you Irishman dressed up in a Scotch uniform."

I notice that some of the officials are on the spot for having pulled "boners" in Saturday's games. Well, Paul Allison former freshman coach at Carnegie, almost broke his neck "saving" me from what he thought was going to be an atrocious blunder on my part in the closing seconds of our game with Notre Dame. I was watching the clock and the timekeeper's movements as the Tech team held onto the ball just before the finish, and, as he moved to signal the scoreboard, I stepped over near the sidelines and Allison thought I was going to invade the field and bring a penalty of half the distance upon the players. With a rush he pounced upon me, yelling:

Was my face red?

THAT W. & J. GAME

What about our game with W. & J. at the Stadium on Saturday?

Well, I guess that will hold until Friday's article.

SKIBOS WARNED TO RESPECT PRESIDENTS

By JESS CARVER

Even if this year's Wash-Jeff football team wasn't formidable enough to warrant being taken in a serious fashion by any opponent on the schedule, the history of the Carnegie Tech and W. & J. gridiron relations should be enough to cause the Tartans deepest concern.

There are few college football relationships in the country which have held as many disappointments to one team as has the series with the Presidents for the Tartans. In years past, Tech elevens always have experienced the greatest difficulty in beating W. & J., even though on occasions, the Plaid has entered games favored to win.

W.-J. TOUGH

Tech footballers seem to have hides the Prexies love to touch, and they've touched 'em and roughed 'em plenty in the past.

Take for example the game back in 1928, when Carnegie had one of its greatest teams. You can't tell many Wash-Jeff men, including Andy Kerr, now coach at Colgate, who was winding up his stay at the Little Washington institution that season, that Referee Dex Very didn't blow a "fast" whistle in the first period, when Buzz Edwards grabbed a punt, stopped momentarily as two tacklers came at him, and then sprinted 40 yards or more for a touchdown. Dex tooled his whistle as Buzz stopped, before he was hit, and the play was called back.

Tech went on to win the game, 20 to 0, but W. & J. men will tell you, and insist, that had Edwards' touchdown been allowed, it would have made all the difference in the world in the result of the game. Your correspondent has heard Brother Kerr dwell at length on the subject, too, and when Andy dwells at length on any subject he does some fine, all-America dwelling.

NO LOAFING ALLOWED

At any rate, the Plaid cannot afford to take Saturday's contest with the Red and Black lightly. Pitt tried to laugh off the Presidents in the season's inaugural at the Stadium and were extremely fortunate to have even the weak, last and sickly grin. Tech beat Notre Dame last week, 7 to 0, and the Notre Dame team that staggered about the Stadium turf wasn't one-two-three with the W. and J. eleven that battled Pitt.

Coach Harpster began preparations for the game with the Wash-Jeffers yesterday, a day ahead of time. He had planned to give his varsity two days of rest, but having seen all the movies and having nothing else in particular to do, and being an extremely ambitious young men, the varsity popped upon the scene of action yesterday and promptly were put to work.

Two changes may be effected in the Tech lineup for the Wash-Jeff game. Lib Lewis, injured right end, hardly will be in shape for action and his place will be taken by George Goodridge, who EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE CITY OF TWO STATES—Bristol is formed of two adjoining cities, of which one is in Sullivan County, Tenn., and the other is in Washington County, Va. The state line runs through State street, the main business thoroughfare. Due to its situation in two different states, the two halves of the city have different municipal administrations. Bristol, Tenn., with a population of 12,005, according to the 1930 census, has no hotel or railroad station. The hostelries and the station are on the Virginia side of Bristol.

SEVEN EASTERN TEAMS RISK RECORDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The studious football follower, curious to ascertain just what the sectional championship prospects are, will have plenty to gnaw on after this week's games have been won, lost and tied.

An early-season campaign against set-ups or intersectional foes, profitable or interesting as it may have been, leaves most conference races still in the formative stage with no possibility of accurate ratings. This week should correct that for most of the big fellows will take their fun in conference games.

MICHIGAN FAVORED

In the Big Ten, for instance, four conference games should clarify the situation considerably although there's small chance of anything occurring to make Michigan's Wolverines any less the outstanding favorites they already are. The result of their meeting with Chicago is regarded as a foregone conclusion. At Minneapolis, however, the clash of Iowa's Hawkeyes and Minnesota's Gophers should eliminate one or the other from further contention. Iowa has hung up successive triumphs over Northwestern and Wisconsin, but Minnesota, despite ties with Minnesota and Purdue, looks impressive. Purdue, tied, but unbeaten, should coast by Wisconsin and remain in the chase. Northwestern and Ohio State, rivals at Columbus, have been beaten and, at the moment at least, are out of the race.

CORNHUSKERS AHEAD

A Nebraska victory over Oklahoma and a Kansas defeat by Kansas State would just about decide the Big Six race in favor of Nebraska's Cornhuskers. That would give Nebraska three successive victories with hapless Missouri and a strong defensive Kansas outfit still to be met.

Duke, the heir-apparent to the Southern Conference throne, plays Kentucky, a Southeastern eleven. Florida's undefeated Southeastern record may go by the boards in the meeting with Tennessee, and Louisiana State's first contest in the same group takes the Tigers against Vanderbilt, whose only Conference start resulted in a tie with Mississippi State.

The numerous and unwieldy eastern colleges, with no major conference alignment at all, will have to wait until just about the end of the season before any generally recognized leader will emerge, but this week's slate may serve to eliminate some of the unbeaten teams such as Yale or Army, who collide at New Haven; Fordham, Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Carnegie, all of whom run up against what appears to be formidable opposition.

Eastern Briefs

NEW YORK.—New York University's scrubs adopted Georgia uniforms and used Georgia plays in a scrimmage against the varsity, and the first-stringers stopped them cold. Howard Cann restrained Violet enthusiasm, however, by pointing out that the scrubs were only a weak imitation of the real thing.

ITHACA, N. Y.—A steady rain drove Cornell into the baseball cage for a shortened workout yesterday. The varsity ran through signals and practiced passing in preparation for the Columbia game two weeks hence.

EASTON, Pa.—With Nesi, guard, and Ambrose, tackle, in the college infirmary as a result of injuries suffered in the Bucknell game, Herb McCracken shifted his reserves around to plug up the vacancies in time for the forthcoming duel with Colgate. Rain forced the squad indoors for a rehearsal of plays.

NEW YORK. — Chick Meehan was pleased by the improvement his Manhattan College varsity showed on the defense. The Jaspers have small hopes of conquering a team of Villanova's power, but hope to hold the margin within respectable limits.

NEW YORK.—Rainy weather delayed the start of Columbia's preparations for the Penn State game, limiting the work to "skull" practice and a brief outdoor drill on fundamentals.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Most of the Princeton regulars had their second day of rest as the weather prevented any heavy drill. Bob Kopf, guard, and Dick Kaufman, halfback, were the only first stringers who took part in the stationary scrimmages which three reserve elevens and the Omelettes were sent through.

Rangers to Boost Hockey Fray Prices

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers have announced an increase in ticket prices for the forthcoming National Hockey League season. Tickets which sold for $2.20 last season will be boosted to $2.50 and the $1.65 ducats of a year ago will bring $2.

Lester Patrick, already vice president as well as coach of the club, was appointed to the board of directors. He promptly announced that every member of the club except Babe Seibert had signed a contract. Seibert is listed as a holdout.

SHADY SIDE WINS

CRACK SANDLOT ELEVENS MEET

By TOM BIRKS

Wilkinsburg will get its first taste of sandlot football under flood lights tonight, when the Wilkinsburg and Oakmont Merchant elevens meet at Turner Park.

The Wilkinsburg gridders have been setting a snappy pace in the Allegheny Valley League, and have chalked up three victories against one defeat. In the four games played, not one of the opposing teams have been able to cross the Holy City goal line.

Manager Dick Fusia, former Wilkinsburg High School star, has gathered together a classy bunch of former high school players. Gale Sloan is the quarterback. Walker and Caton are the halves, with Kassall the plunging fullback, who is leading in the scoring.

Sandlot Notes

Gale Sloan, Jr., the Wilkinsburg quarterback, is a son of Gale (Zip) Sloan, former star sandlot pitcher. Sloan was well known on the local sandlots over a period of years, especially when Bellevue and Ambridge were powers on the diamond.

The Scott Morgans will be the attraction at Tarentum tonight. Hooks Carroll is playing great football for the Magistrate's team this season, and works well with Red Sullivan, former Duquesne University star.

Eddie and Regis Brown are putting on a great brother act in the Corpus Christi backfield. The Hartman Park aggregation is not a member of any league, but as independents are playing to large crowds. Regis plays quarterback, with Vince Fogle calling the signals from the fullback position.

A number of sandlot fans are of the opinion that Allison Park has the classiest team playing Conference football. This may be due to the brilliance of Turner, the Allison Park quarterback.

Joe Zivic, well known boxing and sandlot referee, worked hard last week coaching the Etna Sycamores for their battle of the season with the Rox Rangers. Joe did not feel so well losing the decision via the safety route.

Al Quaill, local senior middleweight amateur boxing champion, is coaching the Brookline Merchants' football team and doing a good job. The Brooklineers are scheduled to appear in Altoona this week-end.

The Duke A. C. football team would like to book games with strong 110-pound class clubs. For games call Hiland 5892 between 7 and 8 o'clock.

SPORT VIGNETTES

So they're going to take Mike Sebastian out of the Pitt lineup because he has a tendency to fumble . . . Perhaps you would, too, if you were the coach of the team and responsible for its success, but this writer can't refrain at this time from saying a word or two in behalf of this player, whom he expects to come back in spectacular fashion before this, his final season, fades from the scene . . . Right now, Mike is in the spot where a feller needs a friend . . . He's been a good journeyman halfback for Pitt . . . He was the hero of last year's victory over Notre Dame, and he has stood out in many other games . . . And remember this. It isn't always the halfback's fault when he fumbles . . . Sometimes the pass from center isn't all that it might be . . . They do say the pass Mike fumbled near the goal line against Minnesota last Saturday was such a pass . . . Mike had to reach far for the ball and muffed it . . . The circumstances must be considered . . . That's why we'd like to see Mike, a hard worker, get the call to enter the game against Notre Dame at some time next Saturday and come through in a tough spot . . . Maybe he needs some sort of a shock to pull him together and make him the star he was . . . But we're sure everybody hasn't given up on him, and now's the time to let him know it . . . Go get 'em, you, Mike!

Within a period of eight days, Pittsburgh football fans turned out in the following manner in the way of paid admissions for college football games: Duquesne-Western Maryland, 5,000; Pitt-Navy, 37,000; Duquesne-Detroit University, 15,000, and Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame, 57,000 . . . A total of 114,000 . . . And they say there's no money around! . . . What this town needs is a real big shot fight promoter with a bankroll to revive boxing in a big club . . . The recent Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee battle at Forbes Field set an all-time attendance record here, with receipts in excess of $21,000, and we haven't had anything since . . . But the folks here have indicated that they'll turn out if you give them something for their money, as in the case of football, noted above . . . The Moose Temple promoters are game guys . . . They took it on the chin with their first two offerings, and should make up for these losses when they offer their first real scrap, Sunny Jim McVey vs. Reds Barry, a couple of socking heavyweights, next Monday night.

The Jimmy Belmont-Joey Bazzone rivalry will develop a good return bout as soon as Belmont recovers from his split eye, which caused their battle on Monday night to be stopped in the ninth round when Belmont was winning after a slow start but had that bum glimmer . . . A butt raised a lump on Bazzone's right eye in the first round and another butt ended the scrap . . . They don't feel any too kindly toward each other as a result . . . Primo Carnera didn't get any money for his bout with Paulino Uzcudun in Rome the other day, but he got a flock of raspberries from his countrymen for his failure to knock out the veteran, and perhaps he can eat them.

There was a lot of dissatisfaction over the turnout of only 30,000 fans for the Army-Illinois game in the Cleveland Stadium last Saturday, which was blamed on the prices, ranging up to $6, which is too much for any football game . . . More than 10,000 saw the battle from the $1.20 bleacher seats . . . The top price for the Michigan-Ohio State game at Ann Arbor, which drew a capacity crowd of more than 93,000, was only $2.75, which shows the way the wind is blowing. . . The sooner the colleges put the games within the pocketbook range of the customers the sooner the stadia will be packed.—HARRY KECK.

WINOOKA, EQUIPOISE MATCH OFF

ANZAC HORSE IN EASTERN TEST TODAY

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The test race for Winooka, Australian sprint star, is to be run over the Laurel track today with four of America's fastest thoroughbred horses opposing.

Winooka's opponents in the special three-quarters-of-a-mile dash, which carries a purse of $2,500 added, are A. L. Ashe's Character, Lee Rosenberg's Golden Patch, Mrs. S. H. Fairbank's Gold Step, and Mate, owned and trained by A. C. Bostwick.

The race was arranged in the nature of a test and tune-up for the proposed match with the American champion, C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, which was to have been run November 7 in New York.

FAIL TO AGREE

Failure on the part of Whitney and Rule Naylor to agree on the conditions, however, resulted in the apparent definite cancellation of the race.

Whitney agreed to have the race run at seven furlongs, rather than a mile and Naylor, managing Winook's tour, agreed to 126 pounds, but the question of a purse stopped all negotiations.

Whitney proposed a $5,000 purse to be donated by the Westchester Racing Association, but Naylor was reported to have held out for $25,000.

Character drew the first post position, with the others in the following order, Kerry Patch, Gold Step, Winooka and Mate. Starters for the race have posted a $250 nomination fee.

BRITT ON WINOOKA

Three of the jockeys have been picked. Edgar Britt, an Australian, will ride the horse from down under; Earl Porter, who has been riding in New York, is expected to mount Gold Step, and Joe Renick is to ride Character. Lee Humphries will ride Kerry Patch, and Sonny Workman will be up on Mate.

The co-feature of the card is to be the twenty-second running of the $2,500 added two-mile Chevy Chase steeplechase handicap for 3-year-olds and up. This is the only special race of the Laurel season for leapers.

RAYMOND WINS TURF CLASSIC

International News Service.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 25.—Raymond, owned by Sir Abe Bailey, won the historic Cambridgeshire handicap this afternoon. Sir Ernest Tate's Denbigh was second, and Stalky, owned by Sir Thomas Putnam, third.

Raymond paid 33 to 1, Denbigh, 22 to 1, and Stalky, 50 to 1.

Raymond was well ridden by Jockey Nicoll. Although the horse had not been among the favorites, it was conceded a fair chance before the race, and the advance odds were the same as Sir Abe's entry paid for defeating the field.

Sir Abe Bailey is the multi-millionaire South African diamond king who long has been prominent in British turfdom. He is the husband of Lady Bailey, who last spring was lost for four days in the Sahara Desert while on an attempted record-breaking non-stop flight from London to Cape Town.

The race was run over a mile and an eighth. The Cambridgeshire was first staged in 1839 and is one of the classics of Britain's flat racing season.

King George and Queen Mary were in the distinguished throng which witnessed the race. His majesty was disappointed over Limelight's failure to come through according to expectations. The royal entry had been quoted at 8 to 1 to win in the advance betting.

CHILLYSAUCE

—By CHILLY DOYLE—

"Say, feller, I wish you'd put me down for a bigger and better season next year. I reckon a little of this Pennsylvania frost will tone me up right smart. I'm beginning to feel better all ready."

Folks, that was Lloyd James Waner broadcasting on a short wave length and it was quite a long speech from the unassuming outfielder. Lloyd's month old baby is crying for baseballs these days while his daddy is smacking golf balls over various sections of Allegheny County.

After a star of the diamond has compiled a batting average of .340 flat in six years of competition he is apt to wonder what it is all about when he goes through a season with a swat mark of .276. Such has been the experience of Brother Lloyd. Here are the figures on his six years with the Bucos, exclusive of the past season.

G.	R.	H.	Ave.

Aside from his magnificent hitting record in the six years you will note that he averaged 100 runs scored per season, and this in the face of his sick season of 1930 wherein he played in only 68 games and scored but 32 tallies.

Lloyd's tumble into the realm of .270 batters was one of the extraordinary developments of Pirate play. The wee marvel did not pack his regular punch and in a general way was not the troublesome jackrabbit who caused pitchers to toss in their sleep. But all of that has gone over the dam and Lloyd already is preparing for his assault of the league's best sharpshooters.

The centerfielder is only 27, therefore he should be nearing the crest of his career. The arrival of the baby has had a wondrous effect on Lloyd. he is full of pep and up with the chickens in the morning. He figures he will build himself up physically for the next campaign and he seems to be on the right road, as he plays golf and hunts several times each week. Said Lloyd:

"I think I will get in good shape around Pittsburgh. Honus Wagner has it all fixed to take me into the woods on hunting trips as soon as the rabbits begin to run and when I'm not chasing them I'll be chasing the little golf ball around. I want to get back into a good stride for next season as I know we are going to have a good ball team.

Brother Lloyd is apt to be delegated to centerfield just as quickly as the next training season begins. The experiment of last season involving Lloyd and Fred Lindstrom did not work out so well. Nearly everybody hailed the move as a smart action, but as times progressed it was seen that Lindy was not quite the ball hawk that Lloyd is in the center patrol. Moreover, there are some who think that the switch to left bothered the little fellow at the plate.

W.-J. TO TEST TECH TEAM

PANTHERS IMPROVED

Pitt's Panthers were given another session of scrimmage yesterday afternoon, their second of the week, and showed some noticeable improvement in running off plays. The Pitt coaches are not drilling the boys on any new plays for the game with Notre Dame, being of the opinion that the best thing to do is to have the lads learn how to work their old ones correctly.

Bob Hogan, who won renown as a center at Meadville High before coming to Pitt, but who has performed only as a quarterback for Panther varsities, has been at center in workouts this week and probably will be at center against the Irish.

With Kleskey, regular center, handicapped by a shoulder injury, and Shotwell, his understudy, passing inaccurately, Coach Sutherland feels that Hogan can be used to better advantage at center than at quarter, where Miller Munjas fills the bill quite capably.

Both the first and second elevens drilled on the defense against Notre Dame plays as portrayed by Bill Kern's shock troops.

The Pitt squad will entrain for the Middle West tomorrow night, proceeding directly to Niles, Mich., where, save for a brief appearance in the Irish Stadium Friday afternoon, it will remain in seclusion until game time Saturday.

DUKES GO 'WEST'

It would appear as if the Dukes have taken Horace Greeley's famous slogan quite literally. The Dukes certainly have been "going west" all season. They've beaten WEST Virginia Wesleyan, WEST Virginia, WESTern Maryland, a mid-western eleven in Detroit and now they are preparing for WESTminster.

Coach Layden is expected to give his regulars plenty of rest this week against the Titans in the final night game at Forbes Field, using his second and third stringers as much as possible.

PROS TO LEAVE FOR EAST

The Pittsburgh Pirates will leave for Boston tomorrow morning and will not return to Pittsburgh until they meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in Forbes Field Sunday, November 12. The Pirates expect to do things on their trip, since Tony Holm and Angel Brovelli will be available for the games, both recovering sufficiently from injuries to warrant playing in Boston next Sunday and in Brooklyn the following week.

With Brovelli and Holm back in the game, the club had to reduce its roster to 22 men to keep within the league rule, and Bucky Moore and Don Rhodes, former W. & J. tackle, have been released.

Dignitaries Attend Phil Ball Rites

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—The baseball world, represented by many of its dignitaries, paid its final tribute yesterday afternoon to Philip De Catesby Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns of the American League.

Brief funeral services, lasting about 10 minutes, were conducted at the Ball suburban home in Ferguson. Burial was in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

U. S. Riders Trail In Chicago Show

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The military jumping team from Ireland captured spotlight honors last night when it captured first and third places in the international pair jumping event at the World's Fair horse show.

Capts. Dan Corry and Fred Ahearn, of the Free State Army, made the only perfect round of the competition on their fourth and final attempt, in the event when two riders take the jumps simultaneously. The hurdling of Maj. J. T. Cole and Lieut. E. F. Thomson, of the American Army team, brought one demerit mark, and the Fort Riley (Kan.) pair was rated second in the event.

Primo to Meet Schmeling in Rome

ROME, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Managers of Primo Carnera, world heavyweight champion, told newspapermen that Primo would fight Max Schmeling, of Germany, former holder of the crown, in Rome next year. They said the match had been arranged definitely, but that the exact date still was to be decided upon.

They said Carnera would fight a title match in Rome once a year so long as he holds the championship.

Goal Lines

The big football tussle of the week for West Virginia brings the high scoring Davis-Elkins eleven and West Virginia into action against each other on Mountaineer Field, Morgantown.

The Scarlet Hurricane, in five games, has scored 235 points to lead all college football teams in the nation, with an average of 47 points a game. While the opposition has not been of the highest caliber, perhaps, there can be no question that the Senators have a fine offense.

On the other hand, West Virginia, pacing Pitt, Fordham, Temple, Duquesne and the Mountaineers, has held these same foes to a total score of 34 points, an average of 14 a game.

Vanderbilt and Louisiana State have been playing in the same conference for a long time, but they might as well have been at opposite ends of the globe so far as competition with each other was concerned. Saturday's clash at Baton Rouge marks the first meeting between the two in 23 years.

It's very handy for the Pennsylvania coaches to have LaSalle College nearby. [illegible] Marts Bell, who has been against the quakers in the 1930 game, is now coaching at LaSalle.

The boys from Cooper Union play football under plenty of handicaps, but they still play. The team does not offer [illegible] to represent the school and receives no support from the athletic funds. And now the word comes that it must be listed as "Cooper Union Students" or the players are liable to be suspended from college on the ground that they're claiming a position that doesn't belong to them.

BOBBY JONES NAMES GOLF'S HARDEST SHOT

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer to Win U. S. and British Amateur and Open Titles in the Same Year.

There is no place in golf where skill and experience count for quite as much as in the short approach work around the greens. It is in this department, more than any other that profit can be had from suggestions respecting the handling of difficult lies and delicate situations. The possibilities are almost without limit, and the player must know them all. One tee shot is about like any other, and shots through the green differ but little in their important features, but almost every short approach is a distinct problem.

Bobby Jones

George Dunlap, at lunch on the day of the final at Kenwood, said that the most difficult shots on the course were the short approaches, because the ball always was lying closely on the wet turf. The grass was quite thin in places, so that if the shot were hit the least bit heavy the ball would go nowhere. I remarked that he had found the best way around the difficulty in that morning's round, by the obvious method of putting every second shot on the green so that he had none of these shots to play.

MUDDY LIES DIFFICULT

Unfortunately this is a situation very often met with—when the ball is resting quite closely in a sort of muddy place—and unfortunately, too, there are not many able to solve the problem as simply as did Dunlap. Playing the stroke in the normal way, attempting to loft the ball, the chances are that the shot either will be topped or completely flubbed if the club should touch the muddy ground too soon. In such a situation it is almost necessary to hit the ball a descending blow to provide some margin of safety. It is best to use a club with plenty of loft, say a No. 6 or 7, depending upon the other requirements of the shot, and to play the ball back farther than usual, more nearly off the right foot. Striking, then, a slightly descending blow there is not so much danger of taking the muddy earth before meeting the ball.

This is for a simple approach when there is nothing in the way. When one has to play a short pitch over a bunker from a lie of this kind, and stop the ball quickly, it is another thing entirely. There you have my nomination for the most difficult shot in golf. Hardly any player in the world would expect to be able, except by accident, to nip the ball exactly right and pop it up without touching the sodden earth. The margin just isn't enough—in fact, there is no margin at all—and yet the shot cannot be hit down like the other.

USES MODIFIED EXPLOSION

There is no way of playing this shot with absolute safety, but there is a way of greatly improving the chances of success. Where one has to choose between the risk of half topping the ball and sending it far over the green and that of flubbing it into the bunker in front of the hole, I think the latter almost always would be my choice. I play this shot as a sort of modified explosion, exactly as I would from a fairly clean lie in a bunker—laying off the face of my niblic to give it greater loft, using a long swing and taking a little of the mud behind the ball. As I have said, this in itself is a risky business, and the stroke has to be nicely gauged, but, after all, it is the safest way and the most likely to succeed.

It would be almost possible to write a book concerned with nothing but the variety of situations which arise in the play around the greens. This is one of the reasons that, although practice is necessary and helpful in developing a sound swing, nothing but a vast amount of play and experience can teach a person how best to deal with difficulties of this nature. Of course, he must have the swing before he can play the shot, even if he knows what he ought to do, but it works the other way, too, and he must know how to give himself the best chance.

Between Rounds

WWSW will broadcast the Ted Yarosz-Young Terry fight in Newark, N. J., tonight by telegraphic description from the ringside. Marts Gornick, of Whitaker, boxes in the semi-final.

Matchmaker Bus Vogel of the Moose Temple is at work on the preliminary card for his Sunday, Oct. 30 show. Kid McVey Rocks Barry show next Monday night.

Carl Montebano, of Braddock, was weakened making weight for his bout with Paul Pirrone in Cleveland last Monday night, and will box as a light-heavyweight in the future, according to his manager, Frank Klaus.

Joey Speigel, Uniontown welterweight boxes Al Becker, of the West End, at Fairmont, W. Va., tomorrow night, and Paul Oger at Charleston, W. Va., next Monday night. He would like to box Joey Sazzone, of McKeesport, who made his debut as a main bouter against Jimmy Reimont at the Moose [illegible] Monday.

Dominick Mancini who lost on a foul to Pat Levy at the Moose when he had the latter on the verge of a knockout Monday night, is anxious to keep busy and is ready to meet any of the 142-pounders. He has not been suspended for the accidental foul.

Ted Yarosz and his manager, Ray Foutts, will proceed to Boston to see the Lou Brouillard-Vince Dundee fight after Yarosz' battle with Young Terry in Newark, N. J., tonight.

GRAD, KORNICK STAND OUT

crown and earn the right to play for the city championship. Grad has been the shining light in each of the three games. Stop him and you stop the South High attack.

Like Grad, Kornick has been the outstanding star for Perry in the North Siders' fight to retain the Section II crown and the right to play in the post-season game for the local crown. While Grad executes all of his stunts on the gridiron in an orthodox manner, Kornick is a southpaw in everything he does with a football.

The Perry High quarterback throws all passes with his left hand, boots the ball with his left foot and carries it in his left hand. His accurate punting and passing have had a lot to do with the victories scored by Perry this season.

City League schools face a heavy program of games on Friday with the Carrick-Perry game at Perry heading the schedule. Carrick is undefeated in Section II with three victories and no defeats, while Perry shows two triumphs and one deadlock. Perry must defeat Carrick to retain its sectional crown. A victory for Carrick will just about cinch the laurels for Ted Lyons' boys.

South, Section I leader, engages Peabody at Langley Field, while Fifth Avenue meets Allderdice at Schenley Field in the two games carded in the first division. In the second game carded in Section II, Oliver meets Allegheny at Oliver Field.

Two non-league games also are scheduled for city teams, Langley playing at Crafton, while South Hills invades Westinghouse.

The Central Catholic High eleven has completed arrangements to meet Redstone at Redstone Friday afternoon. Redstone was the team that eliminated California from the race for the class A crown of the W. P. I. A. L. last Saturday.

YAROSZ CHOICE OVER TERRY TONIGHT

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Ted Yarosz, of Pittsburgh, and Young Terry, of Trenton, two of the most fan-pleasing battlers in the middleweight ranks, will square off in the Newark Armory ring tonight to decide which will meet Marcel Thil in his American debut later during the indoor season.

Victor J. (Buddy) Brown, promoter of tonight's show has announced he has signed Thil for a bout in this country and has promised tonight's winner the first chance at the Frenchman, who is recognized by the National Boxing Association as world champion.

Yarosz, by virtue of three triumphs in three bouts in Newark rings, has gained a huge following in this vicinity. Terry, on the other hand, has been popular here for two years as the result of his aggressive style of attack.

Largely because Yarosz twice outpointed the veteran Vince Dundee, the Pennsylvanian will start tonight as the favorite.

PIERTSCH GETS K. O. VICTORY

BUSINESS

Jones and Laughlin Reduces Loss But Passes Dividend

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

JONES AND LAUGHLIN Steel Corporation materially reduced its loss in the third quarter in comparison with the preceding quarter, but the uncertain prospects for the industry made it advisable for directors to pass the preferred dividend.

The last regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value was paid on April 1, 1932. The dividend was reduced to $1 with the payment of July 1, 1932. It stood at 75 cents a share in the payments of October 1, 1932 and January 1, 1933. It was reduced to 25 cents a share on April 1 of this year and the same amount was paid on July 1 and October 1.

As a result of the omission of the dividend due on January 1, 1934, unpaid accumulations will amount to $9 a share at that time.

Demand for Steel Resumes Decline

STEEL PRODUCTION increased from the end of April to the latter part of July. It declined from that time until early this month. After a brief recovery the downward trend has been resumed. Buying and new inquiries give little hope that any marked improvement is to be expected before the end of the year. This situation undoubtedly accounted for the action of the Jones and Laughlin directors yesterday.

Steel production costs have been increased as a result of the changes in wages and working conditions provided under the code for the industry. To a great extent prices have compensated for these higher costs. But the steel industry has heavy overhead charges to meet. These make volume a matter of great importance. The improbability that volume is to increase for some months leads to the belief that results for the fourth quarter will be less satisfactory than those of the third quarter.

Company Reports Operating Profit

IN SPITE of the fact that uncertain prospects influenced directors to omit the preferred dividend, results for the third quarter showed a decided improvement over previous periods. An actual profit was reported before deducting bond interest and providing for reserves for depreciation and depletion. In the third quarter of this year this amounted to $499,149. It compared with operating losses of $384,206 in the second quarter of this year and of $412,423 in the third quarter of last year.

After deducting all charges, including bond interest and reserves for depreciation and depletion, the net loss for the third quarter of this year was $997,133. This compared with net loss of $1,682,801 in the second quarter and of $1,682,919 a year ago.

In omitting the preferred dividend, the Jones and Laughlin directors have taken an extremely conservative stand since the current position is strong. At the end of 1932 current assets amounted to $44,474,350, against current liabilities of $3,178,208. Cash of $7,577,982 was more than double all current liabilities. In addition, the company carried marketable securities at $7,021,357. These had an actual market value at that time of $6,620,097.

Of the leading steel companies, Jones and Laughlin has the smallest burden of funded debt. This stood at $8,770,000 at the end of 1932, in comparison with total assets of $193,527,939. Holdings of securities and cash would permit the company to retire its funded debt and still have enough cash left to pay off all current liabilities.

BUYING WAVES SWEEP OVER MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Buying waves swept through the financial markets today as both traders and investors, under the spur of a lively revival of inflationary psychology, changed money into commodities and equities.

The government's new price for gold of $31.36 an ounce was not quite as high as had been expected in some quarters, and stocks mulled about a little uncertainly at the start. Profit taking was quickly absorbed, however, and another forward push was started after the first hour. The ticker tape fell behind on the advance and slowed down noticably on intermittent realizing. Wheat rallied 3 or more cents a bushel, and rye got up more than 4. Cotton was more than $1 a bale higher. Bar silver jumped 1⅛ cents at 38⅝ cents an ounce, and copper firmed. The dollar rallied against sterling, but eased in terms of the gold currencies. Bonds were mixed.

The gold mining shares moved narrowly, after their brief advance of the previous session, and Homestake dropped 21 points at one time. There was a renewed demand for the oils, with Standards of New Jersey and California, Atlantic Refining, Houston and Seaboard gaining 1 to 2 or more. American Telephone reversed its recent trend with an advance of nearly 4. Allied Chemical was up 3, Case 4, and others, ahead 1 to more than 2, included Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Deere, International Harvester, United States Steel, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, General Electric, Goodyear, Johns Manville, Sears-Roebuck, United States Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol.

European traders, most of whom have been out of domestic stocks during the past several weeks, were reported to have resumed their operations here on a fairly substantial scale. Brokers handling foreign business expressed the opinion that their clients abroad, while believing that inflation in some form or another was a foregone conclusion in the United States, had been holding back on commitments because of the unsettlement which they feared might follow possible suspension of the gold standard by France.

Some commission houses were in receipt of advices from London which indicated that nervousness over the political situation in France apparently was subsiding and that fears over a price relapse in gold had been allayed by the announcement of Washington's new gold control policy. It was pointed out that, even though the French abandon the metallic base, the American program will tend to maintain the world gold price at a high level.

Bankers, in discussing the government's control scheme, generally agreed that the price-fixing plan, while not especially inflationary in itself, might lead to currency expansion in addition to dollar-value depreciation. Leading financiers, however, were not too pessimistic, and were willing to "give the program a chance."

Followers of the oil shares were cheered by the action of Secretary Ickes in setting production for December and January at 2,130,000 barrels, or around 200,000 barrels under the current output.

At the same time, sentiment in the copper industry was greatly improved by sales today of the metal at 8½ cents a pound, which is an advance of about 1 cent in only a few days. The recent drop from 9 to 7½ cents a pound was one of the most rapid in the past several years.

GMO NETS 72c FOR QUARTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The recent substantial recovery of the automobile industry was shown by the earnings statement of General Motors Corporation, issued today, which disclosed that the company, in the quarter ended September 30, had net earnings of $33,341,618, equivalent to 72 cents a common share, compared with loss in the 1932 quarter of $4,464,229.

Net earnings for the first nine months, of 1933 totaled $81,409,794, or $1.73 a common share. In the same period last year net earnings amounted to $10,555,175, equal to 8 cents per share on the common stock.

The corporation, as of September 30, had cash, United States government and other marketable securities totaling $232,566,172 (excluding cash balances in closed banks) compared with $172,780,695 at the beginning of the year.

WHEAT MAKES WIDE GAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Vigorous advances swept wheat values more than 4 cents higher today, with the greatest gains scored in late dealings.

Big margins demanded for speculative transactions tended to keep the general public from participating as largely in grain trading as ordinarily. The main factor was apparently the new prices of gold under latest plans of President Roosevelt.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — The most fundamental fact about the administration's policy continues to be the fixed idea that the price levels must be greatly raised, no matter by what means. This is the major promise.

There is only one way to accomplish this end. That is to depreciate the dollar, and to do it so decisively and inevitably that dollars will not be desired. If dollars are actually reduced in value sufficiently to make people afraid of them and drive people to speculate on their further decline, the price level will rise.

It has been proved over and over again that the attempt to raise prices by reserve bank credit operations is futile. Under present conditions the price lifter must operate on "money."

MEANINGS CONFUSED

We cut our money loose from gold, making it irredeemable. But the Treasury has so much gold that the people could not really believe the dollar would not eventually return to a gold basis, and talk of "devaluation" has always been confused with "revaluation."

So it has become necessary to the price lifter's program that the connection between gold and the dollar be broken down more effectively.

The recent moves are designed to prove to us that the dollar is not worth as much as we seem to think it is. The administration wants to advertise the fact that the dollar has been too high in terms of gold. So it is buying gold above the world price. It insists on a further depreciation in dollars.

A good many observers are arguing that this procedure will not be effective because, they say, dollars must be forced into circulation if they are to affect the price level, and they don't see how that can be done.

CONFIDENCE FACTOR

But the following points seem to be a sufficient answer:

1—Any great depreciation in the security of the dollar and lack of confidence in its purchasing power, affect its value and its circulation.

Those with goods to sell will ask more dollars of the buyer. Buyers may not have more dollars, but they will be more desirous of getting rid of what they have. This starts speculation and fear buying.

2—Just as in war times, the government is borrowing and spending. (Are we not told this is a "war on depression?") It is now buying gold, not only showing intent to devalue further, but also putting more dollars into circulation.

The "public works," including increased Army and Navy expenditures, are being stepped up. Government expenditures for its greatly increased control activities, and relief, are swelling. Large advances are being made to farmers and others. All this in "circulation."

3—Bank credit is being "loosened up," by extensions of government credit to weak bankers and direct pressure on all banks to make loans.

4—Present conditions make a relatively small amount of currency and credit excessive. Business requirements are so low that it takes a much smaller amount of money to be "excessive" than it did in 1929.

Furthermore, there is now no "good money" to drive out of circulation. Any increase in paper money circulation is just added to the paper money already in circulation.

INFLATION OBSTACLES

It is true that poor business, high taxes, high costs under NRA, large inventories and consumer resistance to high prices are obstacles of effective inflation.

But I think that these merely mean that the attempts to boost prices by inflation will have to be more drastic and extreme than otherwise.

And that means that it will be very difficult to exercise control over inflation or currency depreciation, once they get started.

DOLLAR SHOWS FURTHER LOSS

International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — The dollar continued to lose ground today with the rate touching 66.27 cents in terms of francs against 66.48 cents yesterday.

British pound sterling gained ¼ cent at $4.78¾. Scandinavian exchanges, however, failed to follow the pound reacting from 1 to 7 points on profit taking induced by the recent sharp advances. Canadian dollar, though, gained another ⅛ of a cent at 98⅞ cents.

The European gold currencies were again strong against the dollar. French francs gained 6 points to 5.96 cents. Belgian belgas 38 to 21.13. Swiss francs 32 to 29.37, and Dutch guilders 55 to 60.95. German marks again led the restricted gold exchanges higher with a gain of 30 points at 63.15 cents, while Italian lire and Spanish pesetas scored lesser gains.

KNOX

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XIV

During her lunch interval Nollie called up six O'Briens, but with no result.

Three of them proved to be the wrong person. The other three were out.

Two of the calls knidded her unmercifully. Nollie was humiliated.

"After what I've done, what business have I pursuing him this way?" She was hurt, and proud.

But make herself cheap she wouldn't, and couldn't. Not if she never saw him again.

Somehow . . . some way or other . . . they would meet. They must. She was sure of it.

But the long day passed without another sign. At 5:30 she slipped out of the hotel and called another P. J. O'Brien up.

"I wish Mrs. Judson had never given me such a dress and wrap! I wish I'd never met him!" thought Nollie restlessly.

Ache at her heart. Her work not done so well. Her eyes questing for him, straying over and anon over the balcony of the mezzanine.

RUNS AFTER MAN

Then—the fourth day—she saw him!

It was nearly 2 o'clock and she had returned for a belated snack of lunch and was looking over the balcony.

With a terrific flutter at the heart, she saw Tony O'Brien speaking to the clerk at the information desk.

Her face as white as chalk, her feet rooted to the spot and her eyes fixed on him, Nollie stared down into the lobby.

"He saw me. He's been told who I am in this hotel. He knows—I was an impostor—"

But speak to him she must. Explain. Apologize. Oh, don't let him get away without a word with her . . . .

She turned and fairly ran down the corridor.

But when she gained the lobby he was gone. Nor could the clerk at the information desk tell her his name, except that the young man had been making inquiry about a Mrs. Judson who had gone to Europe.

LOST IN CROWD

In a hot, fainting panic, and praying she wouldn't miss him—for indeed it was Tony—she ran headlong out to the street.

This way and that she stared, the sun blazing in her eyes. No sight of him!

Tony had gone!

Oh, had he recognized her?

But he would have stopped, surely? Would at least have said something to her?

Bury the dream. The stern reality of living faced her. Her temporary job at the Hotel Luxor was finishing.

This was the only link that could connect with him. Vainly, and swallowing her pride, she had called up every P. J. or J. P. O'Brien she could find in the telephone directory.

And none of them were him!

He was as much lost to her—this handsome, laughing Tony—as though their magic meeting had never been.

Forget it all. She must find a new job. She bethought of the introductory letter given her by Mrs. Judson to that big firm downtown.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, young and pretty, goes to New York for a career. After searching in vain for a position, she faints on the street. She regains consciousness in a suspicious looking house owned by a woman called "Daffy." Nollie flees in terror when one of Daffy's "friends" make advances. Later, she obtains a position as public stenographer in a high-class hotel where she meets Mrs. Virginia Judson, a wealthy widow. Nollie substitutes for Mrs. Judson at a theater party. Mr. Hiram, with whom Mrs. Judson had the appointment, sends young and handsome Tony O'Brien in his stead. Nollie tries to explain she is not Mrs. Judson, but Tony does not hear her. After a happy evening together, Tony tells Nollie he will telephone her next day. It dawns upon Nollie that Tony will call Mrs. Judson. Next day the telephone operator has a difficult time convincing Tony that Mrs. Judson has sailed for Europe.

Now Go On

Galbraith & Co. An import house. The letter was addressed to the head of the firm.

GETS NEW JOB

It hurt even to look at the letter—to present it—because the very thought of Mrs. Judson must bring back memories of Tony O'Brien.

But Nollie got her job. At $18 a week, too. That was a living.

Nollie worked hard. She read up about her firm's business in the evenings too. She was determined to advance herself.

Forget romance. Plunge into work. That way, if not happiness—lay a certain contentment.

Oh! would they meet again. They must. Suppose—when Mrs. Judson came back from Europe—

Best not think of that. He would have forgotten her by then. Probably had done so now. They said the Irish were great flirts.

She'd flirted, too, that night. But no! Truly she had been immensely drawn by him. He'd made a big dent in her heart.

There were plenty of young men in the office. But Nollie feverishly flung herself into her work.

She would stay late, too, if needed . . . and nothing was a trouble to the girl.

Therefore she earned commendation, and—when the secretary of one of the heads of the department went on her vacation—it was Nollie who was deputized to work for Mr. Brilling.

Jack Brilling was a young man of about 30 years of age, blond, and considered good-looking.

He had nice manners, and was kind to Nollie. But work had piled up in his office, and there was a great deal to be done.

"I've been golfing a couple of afternoons a week, and I'm afraid I've been a bit remiss in allowing things to accumulate—"

It was quite true. Nollie had to dig in hard. Mr. Brilling often stayed late at the office with her.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't be so inquisitive about purely personal matters.

Especially refrain from seeking to know the standing and past history of every individual you meet unless it strictly concerns you personally.

A newcomer is subjected to many inquiries, the answers to which should not be of any particular interest to the questioner.

And the prying one may have no other reason or excuse for interrogating except to provide information that can be circulated in gossip.

It is true that a person seeking to enter a certain group should expect to give necessary and accurate information to establish his or her standing.

But beyond the established fact that the person in question is of good reputation and congenially agreeable to the circle, what right have members of the circle to quiz and pry into strictly private affairs.

The financial condition of her husband is a shoddy basis from which to decide whether or not a woman may be acceptable to any group.

BATTLE OF LEXINGTON, MASS. (April 19, 1775)

The British troops, dispatched by Gov. Gage from Boston to seize the colonists' ammunition stores at Concord and to arrest Samuel Adams and John Hancock, at Lexington met the Minute Men, aroused by Paul Revere. The British, forcing their way toward Concord through the thin line of the Minute Men, killed and wounded several of them. Thus the first blood was shed for the great cause of liberation. NOBLE MOTHER REARS SOCIAL REFORMERS—THE GRACCHI

Cornelia, a most cultured Roman matron, imparted noble and humanitarian ideas to her sons, Tiberius and Galus Gracchus. This was exceptional when soldiers, officials sacked provinces; new rich were created from profiteering, while peasants faced ruin from dumping of provincial products and increased slave labor.

The republican government, consisting of the dominating Senate and peoples' assemblies with 10 tribunes, was not strong enough to keep balance between the clashing classes.

Tiberius Gracchus, elected tribune 133 B. C., proposed to limit the rich men's land and to distribute the remainder among poor citizens. The proposal became law, but he was murdered by senators. The same fate befell his brother and follower, Gaius, in 121 B. C. (World History)

SELF-SHIFTER

The semi-automatic gear shift consists of 2 shifting units: a selective and an automatic (above). The selective unit has sliding gears controlled by the selector (at left in four positions), by which the low, intermediate and reverse speeds are obtained.

The automatic unit has double internal reduction gears (for intermediate speed, not shown) and a multiple-disc clutch operated by revolving weights (above). At predetermined speed these weights are driven outward by centrifugal force, lock the clutch discs and the unit turns with the crankshaft in "direct" high speed (an overrunning clutch disengages automatically the intermediate speed). The self-shifter changes automatically back and forth between intermediate and high speeds, according to need.

RIDING LISTERS (General Science)

They are used to plant corn, cotton and similar seeds (kafir, feterita, milo, etc.) in even depth and spacing, insuring equal germination.

Above: A riding corn lister. The lister bottom cuts the weeds, the subsoiler opens a furrow in which the seeds are deposited and buried by the disc coverer.

Below: A double corn lister in operation, view from back and side. Note the foretruck construction for animal traction.

LAND RECLAMATION

Prosperous agriculture, the basic industry providing for physical needs, is one of main concerns of the government. One means of improvement is land reclamation, the problems of which are pointed out in above diagram. (Problems of Democracy)

WATER PURIFICATION

Surface water may contain clay, bacteria, microscopic plants to be eliminated by settling, chemicals, filtration. Above: The slow sand filter (English method). Impurities settle in the first tank; the partly clarified water enters the filter basin containing about three feet of fine sand over one foot of coarse sand over 18 inches of gravel, into which the drain pipes for the filtered water are laid.

Right: Charcoal filter. Water passes through felt pad (A) and charcoal bed (B) for retaining suspended impurities and adsorption of obnoxious gases.

Take Away Those Singing Waiters

The singing waiter is back. But he ain't the oldtime blown-in-the-glass tonsil stretcher.

First of all he doesn't know the "Baggage Car Ahead." He ain't hep to "The City of Sighs and Tears." He never heard of the "Milwaukee Fire." Ask him to sing "A Bird in a Gilded Cage" or "The Pleasantville Wreck," and he is stymied like a turtle bumping the Chinese wall.

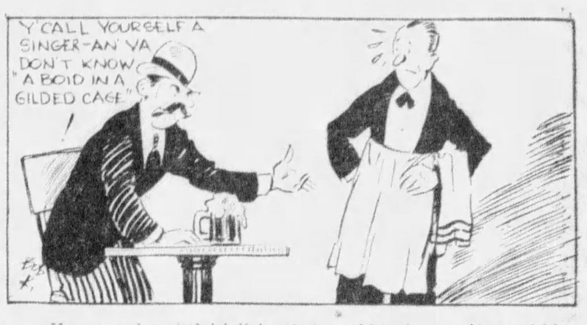
Second, he doesn't filter his voice through his nose and strain it through his mustache. He is not the double distilled tenor of the neat nineties.

They tell us that Shep and Tony run a couple of joints in Hollywood that look like the authentic McCoy. But the warbling garcons wear false lip dusters and paper noses.

The paper noses are painted red. But that wouldn't fool us. We have bitten off too many in our time.

A few of the ancient flea bags have opened up on the Bowery where once Irving Berlin was a platter chirper. The waiters sing in clear sawdust tenors and that's where they make their big mistake.

The lilting stein muscler of the olden days didn't sing. He groaned.



He groaned a pitiful lullaby that would make a wolf sound like a throttled ventriloquist choking on a boiled potato. He groaned and we wept. It was co-operative mourning of the optimistic and better class.

When his voice wavered in the smoke he sat the steins on the table and we dove into them like salmon going up the Columbia River. He kept on singing until he was invited to sit down and join the party. We used to keep him standing until his voice changed. If he pitched the key too high for a crying quartet somebody would grab his necktie and tighten up his valves.

It was a man's world. Only the strong survived and nothing was wrapped in cellophane.

And we ain't going to be dazzled by red paper noses, linoleum ears or synthetic tenors that don't stray more than three octaves from the right-of-way.

If there are any modern entertainers who desire to become genuine singing waiters just call on The Bug and we will teach you to roach your bangs in six easy lessons.

Assures Home Rule

The Metropolitan District Plan Allows the Boroughs to Preserve Self-Government.

There is some opposition—not a great deal, perhaps, but some—to the proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a Greater Pittsburgh, on the ground that it would deprive the boroughs and townships of Allegheny County of their autonomy.

Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the Committee on the Metropolitan Plan for Allegheny County, has done well in correcting this error.

The Metropolitan District is to be a federation, which will make possible economies in the cost of government and give us whatever advantage and prestige are to be derived from being known as the fifth largest city in the country. But the constituent municipalities may maintain their present names and home rule if they wish.

Pleasure Is in Store, Even Though You Know Nothing Of the Technique of Painting.

Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of the department of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, threw illumination in his lecture Monday night on the purposes that actuated him in collecting the pictures for the international exhibition of paintings at the institute. He sought, among other things, to establish a forum in which are exhibited the vagaries of public taste.

Mr. Saint-Gaudens' lecture was the first of a series, to be given by connoisseurs and critics. They will be well worth the attendance of Pittsburghers who are ambitious to extend their education to include appreciation of the fine arts.

But knowledge of the technique of painting and of the aims of modern art is not essential to enjoyment of the current exhibition.

If you like life and color and scenery and people and action, there is a treat in store for you in the pictures. Do not miss this great free show.

The County Coal Output

The Importance of the Local Mining Industry Is Shown By the Figures for a Dull Year.

First page headlines in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday told of an accident in a Versailles Township mine in which three miners were killed and eight others injured.

It is announced that 71,755,806 tons of bituminous coal were produced in Pennsylvania last year. It was valued at $96,701,400 at the mines.

The coal came from 28 counties. Allegheny County was second in volume of production, with an output of 10,394,428 tons. Cambria County was first; Washington County, third; Fayette County, fourth, and Westmoreland County, fifth.

An output of more than 10,000,000 tons of coal in an exceptionally dull year, and in the face of unfairly discriminatory freight rates and other handicaps that favor our competitors, is pretty good evidence that coal is still one of the county's important industries.

Where You Would Emerge

The child has learned that the earth is shaped like a ball. Digging a hole, he asks you where he would come out if he dug far enough.

And you say, as thousands of Pennsylvania fathers and mothers have said to inquisitive little boys and girls, "In China."

Tut, tut! Such inaccuracy!

Someone in Philadelphia submitted the question to the Department of Internal Affairs at Harrisburg—not because the digging of a hole is an internal affair, but because the department has a Bureau of Topographic and Geologic Survey which concerns itself with the structure of the earth.

The bureau reports that if a Philadelphian were to bore his way through the center of the earth he would emerge at a point in the Indian Ocean, 920 miles southwest of the southwest corner of Australia.

The bureau also states that an Erie resident performing the same feat would come out at a point 1,265 miles from the southwest corner of Australia, in the same latitude as Tasmania.

When Time Is Money

Fly.

The distance to be covered was more than 1,300 miles.

Time being money, he spent half an hour figuring up the number of hours which would be required if he went by rail or by plane.

The problem worked out as follows:

By rail, 144.

By plane, 24.

One hundred and forty four hours equal six days. Twenty-four hours equal one day.

He therefore went by plane, covered his entire territory in one day, and was back at his office next morning.

Thus he saved five days by the air route, and his company had the benefit of his services at headquarters for that period, which it would otherwise have lost.

If you have time to spare, there is no moral to this true story.

If time is valuable to you, there is.

Where to Put Them?

Years ago, the Federal Government entered upon a sound policy of promoting and aiding the Good Roads movement.

As a part of the program, provision was made for sharing with States the costs of highway construction.

Many sections of good roads resulted. But for lack of centralized planning, good roads and bad are haphazardly interspersed. No national SYSTEM is being followed.

As long ago as 1926, the Hearst papers pointed out the wisdom and value of building, right across the continent, at least TWO continuous great highways, extending from coast to coast.

These arteries would encourage travel, knit States and communities more closely together, develop domestic commerce and, in time of war, immeasurably strengthen our national defense.

Today, the Federal Government is doing much to foster and finance public works and put idle men to work. Large sums of money have been made available for road building purposes.

Obviously, therefore, TODAY is Uncle Sam's opportunity to build good roads SYSTEMATICALLY instead of erratically, and above all, to give himself those much-needed coast-to-coast highways which some day will have to be completed.

Bar Must Purge Itself Of Crooked Lawyers

By James T. Williams, Jr.

NORTH, EAST, South and West public indignation is rising against the illicit relationship that has grown up in the United States between criminals and lawyers.

These partners in crime were recently publicly condemned by President Roosevelt's Attorney General. Speaking for the President, Attorney General Cummings said that the names of lawyers with underworld connections are now in the files of the Department of Justice.

"I could put my finger on the names of a good many lawyers who are under suspicion," he continued. "If this remark happens to be quoted, they can take it as a warning to mend their ways. They should be punished and made to suffer along with their pals in crime.

"If I can do anything to rid the profession of these scavengers, I shall do it.

"One of the most important elements of predatory crime is the manner in which some members of the bar co-operate with the underworld. Wherever we can prove an improper connection, we propose not only to punish such lawyers, but to disbar them.

"The time has come in this country for a clean-up of the bar. Every bar association in the country should be interested in it."

Crime Based On Legal Profession

ALL THAT the spokesman of President Roosevelt said on this vital subject is reinforced by a recent editorial in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in which appears this blistering indictment:

"Crime in the United States has its base in the legal profession. Everybody knows this. Jurists know it. Reputable lawyers know it. The people know it. So do criminals know it. They have immensely strengthened themselves by establishing contact with the law."

Commenting on this charge, a distinguished member of the New York bar, Mr. Bainbridge Colby, who was President Wilson's Secretary of State, declares that the charge "is true, it is disgraceful, it cannot be tolerated."

Only by purging the legal profession of those members who protect criminals for hire can the illicit relationship between lawyers and criminals be destroyed.

The federal government can and will take the lead in this national clean-up of the American bar. Its leadership will have to be supported, however, by the local and state bar associations and by the whole body of the judiciary, state and federal, if the country is to be rid of the danger and disgrace which unworthy members of the legal profession have created by their alliance with criminals.

Supposed To Be Officers of Court

UNDER THE American system of government, a lawyer is supposed to be an officer of the court. He is not supposed to be the hireling of criminals.

Under the American system of government, a lawyer is supposed to be a citizen of proven character, highly educated and carefully trained for the practice of his profession. He is not supposed to be either a shady character or a citizen of inferior education or of worse morals.

Under the American system of government, the primary responsibility for maintaining at a high standard the legal profession rests upon the several states. The states fix the qualifications required for the practice of law. In some states these are high. In some states they are indefensibly low.

The American system of government entrusts the bar associations of the several states and their communities with the initial responsibility of ridding the legal profession of lawyers who have demonstrated their unfitness to be respected by the community as officers of the court.

If the states are to support the leadership of the Roosevelt administration in driving from the legal profession its vermin and divorcing the profession from every illicit relationship with crime, they must raise the standards required for the education of lawyers and for the examination of applicants for the privilege of practicing law.

The bar associations must also do their part by ceasing to be dining clubs or social organizations and becoming what they are designed to be—the real protectors of their profession with the power to punish and the courage to use that power swiftly and sternly.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The utter desolation of Manhattan street cars has that quality of neglect of the dying horse car days. The horse car became a museum piece. When I came to town, more than 20 years ago, the morning and evening rush hours were constant battles for a strap. No one hoped for a seat.

The red Broadway surface cars especially bulged with human cargoes. To swing on them was an adventure. One might jostle with Oscar Hammerstein, sway with John J. McGraw, Paper Collar Joe, Bozeman Bulger or stand vis-vis with Kitty Gordon. For even stars were unashamed to ride the Broadway surface—aristocrat of cars.

Today a packed street car, even at the rush hour, is a novelty. The rest of the time they bump along forlornly, sometimes with two or three passengers and often empty for blocks and blocks. Increased subway facilities, of course, are principal causes of the street car's abandonment.

Next is the de luxe auto bus, plushed in Pullman splendor, coupled with the extraordinary number who journey to work in their own cars. Many of the companies operating street cars are in receivership. The elevated, too, is in partial eclipse. Twenty years more and they will be memories.

No showman is quite so interested in the layman's opinion as Roxy, although opinions of his professional brothers mean little. In any gathering Roxy will invariably draw out the stranger as to personal reactions to this form of stage show or the other. In other topics he's a total loss. His thoughts, conversation, everything he sees is in terms of the theater.

Every suburb—I think of Forest Hills in particular—has those little off-the-path streets, ashine with discreet prosperity. For blocks the houses are arranged precisely as chocolates in a box, the same front yards, the same clip to hedges, same lounge halls and mixture of Elizabethan woodwork with Georgian red brick. The wives, indeed, seem to shop in the same model nutria coat!

Yet suburban dreams are often nightmares. Some years ago, during a hard up hiatus, we experimented with life in one of a row of all-alike houses. A pleasant change, hearing the crickets and birds from their grotto of hushed shadows and gazing upon the petty affairs of friendly neighbors. But sometimes they became too friendly. The neat bleak woman next door, par example, who harbored unquenchable enthusiasm for funerals and dropped in nightly to tell us about them. We fled from her back to the city with a $60 check from old Ainslee's. One thing they can never subtract from Manhattan's massed charms—neighbors never, never drop in!

It was Charles and Kathleen Norris, as I recall, during the struggling era, who lived in a walk-up fringing Washington Square. Across the hall lived another young couple. All the time they lived so close they did not speak. Years later a whim of destiny corraled them in the same camel caravan, treking to the Sphinx. As they grouped about, Kathleen nodding toward the majestic silences of the Sphinx observed to her fellow flat dwellers: "It had nothing on us!" The ice was broken and they enjoyed a contentful talk.

I am told the very last sketch Ring Lardner contributed to the New Yorker was "Odd's Bodkins!" It was a lusty, stinging and bully travesty of this column done with all the fine Lardnerian lilt for accuracies. He had promised Harold Ross, the editor, the skit for many weeks, remarking: "I want to burlesque Odd McIntyre just once before I die!" And he did magnificently.

Not many writers ever showed the fortitude of Lardner in his last months. Sensitive to his wasted frame, he saw only his family, Percy Hammond, John Wheeler and next door neighbor Grantland Rice. His nights were dreary tortures of agony and wakefulness. He would sit on the bedside and tap out a word at a time between paroxysms. Sometimes a word, then a solid hour before another. Yet in this way he continued to make the world laugh.

After dropping my hat, cane and gloves, and in leaning over to retrieve them, my billfold and pencil, at the Music Hall this afternoon, an annoyed gentleman next seat barked: "You could not do better with a dozen rehearsals. It's complete."

LISTEN, WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson—

We Don't Want to Be Raised From Our Tombs

I've always wondered about that story of Lazarus.

Remember? Christ's friend—the man He raised after he had been dead and in his tomb four days.

How glad and grateful his sisters, Mary and Martha, were! How amazed the multitude! But there's no record of what Lazarus thought about it all. Just the few words:

"Jesus cried with a loud voice, 'Lazarus, come forth!' He that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave-clothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, 'Loose him, and let him go.'"

That was all. But how did Lazarus feel, routed out of his comfortable tomb? Well, if Lazarus was like most of the Heavy Sleepers who are clogging the traffic in the year 1933, he was probably Plenty Peeved!

FOR THE LAST THING MOST OF US WANT IS TO BE SHOOED OUT OF OUR TOMBS AND STRIPPED OF OUR GRAVE-CLOTHES!

Four days dead? Lazarus was just an amateur. Many of us have been four or forty years dead—yet never guessed it! As truly dead as ever was poor Lazarus. Our bodies move around; yes. Our hands perform their accustomed duties. Our lips go through their accustomed patter. But our minds sleep, unmoving, in their tombs.

Such narrow tombs! Such tight, thick walls! Never was granite so hard or steel so cold. For we have spent years building these graves for ourselves—years wrapping these winding-sheets about us. Out of our stubbornness and stupidity, our cowardice and laziness we have hewed these walls. Out of our prejudices, intolerance and conceit we have woven these winding-sheets. Now we lie still—sealed away.

Outside our tomb the world moves swiftly on its way. Old systems crumble; old wisdoms pass away. With an uproar and a flaming wonder the new challenges appear: the new opportunities and adventures.

AND WE MIGHT BE OUT THERE, IN THE THICK OF IT ALL!

We might be part of the tumult and the sunrise—tingling to the glory of it all—finding rebirth.

But, instead, we have chosen to sleep. We have dug our tomb out of set habit, set thought. We have chosen our epitaph, "THE OLD WAYS ARE GOOD ENOUGH FOR ME." And we've crawled away into the darkness.

Then, presently, comes Life and tries to rout us out.

"Wake up!" cries Life, through the voice of some friend or stranger or shakening experience. "Come out of it! Stop snoozing there in your dark little rut—in your moldy old ideas. Don't you know that things have changed; that there's a new world all around you? Shake a leg. You're needed! Snap out of it! COME FORTH.

So comes lusty Life, shouting at the door of our tomb, offering us resurrection. And what do we do? Do we say—

"Thank you, Life! I'm so grateful because you waked me. I'll be right out!"

Do we not say that? Yes, we do NOT! Instead, nine times out of ten, we snap—

"Fhevinsake, what's that awful noise? Can't someone send that Dreadful Creature away? What's the world coming to if a person can't live a quiet, respectable life without these Agitators breaking in! Thank goodness, a few of us are left who have some respect for decency and order. Now go away! Go away at once, I tell you, or I'll phone for the police!"

MARRY-GO-ROUND

—By Helen Rowland—

Modes and Codes of Marriage

Marriage is becoming such an expansive and variegated affair that the word covers almost as many kinds of things as "heart-failure."

You can take marriage—or leave it alone. But you can take a husband (or wife) AND leave him alone! That is, you can begin by occupying twin-beds and finish by living in separate countries—and still be "happily married."

* * *

Marriage used to be standardized. There used to be just the one kind—the old-fashioned domestic sort with a home and babies, three meals a day at regular hours, the preserving every summer, and a husband who began mowing the lawn every spring. And that's the kind of marriage that thousands of average people are looking forward to today. It's one "code" for marriage.

But there are so many people who simply are NOT "average," so many who are individualistic or artistic or temperamental; so many screen stars, radio stars, stage stars, newspaper writers, artists, designers, novelists, playwrights, politicians and politicianesses, that there have to be about fifty-seven codes and forms of marriage to apply to THEM.

That's why this question of whether career-people should try to live in the same house together has been so widely discussed of late.

Lots of men and women were never born to live with anybody on this earth! They are often very attractive men and women, and quite capable of a beautiful, life-long love; but it would be almost inhumane to condemn any normal human being to share evening moods and the morning brain-storms with these people!

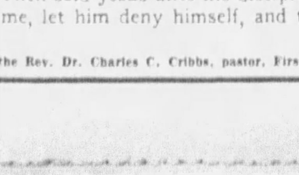
Your kind of marriage will soon be entirely a matter of choice. In fact, it already is, among the sophisticates. Just because a woman loves a man is no reason why she should be condemned to hang up his trousers, count his laundry and keep his coffee hot, unless she happens to be the kind of woman who LOVES to do things. Lots of women do!



And just because a man loves a woman is no reason why he should have to go over the household bills every week, let her see what's in his letters, and rush to his breakfast at the first call, when he's not that sort of methodical man.

Of course there are millions of people to whom this close comradeship and a shared home-life are the sweetest things in all the world. But there are more and more career-people every day, who can't bear having a stop-watch put on their meal hours or a code on their comings and goings, and who get the jitters at having any other human soul puttering around them, during every free minute.

Why can't two people have the sort of marriage which APPEALS to them, whether it's a domestic, seven-days-a-week marriage or a part-time "marriage—a close-up or a long-shot?

* * *

The answer is that THEY CAN! And nobody can stop them! Marriage has a code—but it is no longer standardized.

Text for Today

Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.—Matthew, xvi:24.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Cribbs, pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Ingram.)

Isn't It So?

The more money you have the easier it is for you to practice economy.

The French Government Revives the National Lottery—Patents Still Issued in Enormous Numbers

By Edwin C. Hill

HARD TIMES and the near-bankruptcy of nations have changed human points of view about many things once regarded as bad. In the United States hard times brought about the end of Prohibition. In France hard times revive the national lottery.

Within half an hour after the first tickets in the French national lottery were put on sale, 2,000,000 tickets were sold for $12,000,000. The grand prize is a little more than $300,000. There are 15 other major prizes of $60,000 each.

Legal lotteries came to an end in this country in 1890 when Congress chased the Louisiana Lottery out of New Orleans and sent it into exile down in Honduras, where it still thrives on American money. In the old days Americans weren't so set against lotteries. In June of the year 1758 the Rev. Samuel Seabury, great-great great-grandfather of the eminent ex-judge who drove Jimmy Walker out of office and clawed the tough hide of the Tammany tiger, made this entry in his diary:

"The ticket number 5,866, by the blessing of God, in the Lighthouse and Public Lottery of New York, drew in my favor five hundred pounds, of which I received 425 pounds, for which I now record to my posterity my thanks and praise to Almighty God, the giver of all good gifts. Amen!"

Many great public buildings and monuments, like the British Museum, owe their existence to lotteries. The French, always logical, are capitalizing a known trait of human nature.

Yankee Inventive Genius Active

THAT YANKEE strain which makes us Americans the most inventive of peoples appears to be working overtime nowadays, and in strange and devious ways. While a trainload of inventors has journeyed from New York to Chicago's World Fair, the mills of the patent office in Washington continue to grind out certificates at the rate of 800 a week on as odd an assortment of gadgets as the mind of man can conceive.

In the latest batch brought to light in Washington, one genius has submitted for the approval of his brothers, elastic insets for spats to make them fit neatly, while another offers an automobile tire that depends upon the stuffing of metal springs rather than air.

Few are the women among the 40,000 or so a year who file applications. Woman, it seems, is not of the inventive turn of mind, but when she does turn her hand to something it is usually of the most practical sort and quite frequently a money maker. One woman out in California has just taken out a patent on a crooked pin. Having found that a straight pin often slips from its moorings, she has hit upon one which, with its jagged shape, stays as it is put. Still another woman has worked out a permanent hair curler for the home, which is pretty much like a regular curling iron, and high hopes are held out for this product.

The inventor's life is a good deal like that of a gold prospector's, as K. Bironstad, manager of the Associated Inventors of America, explains it. His statistics show that only one out of 100 sells an invention and makes anything at all out of it.

Little Things Most Successful

THE LITTLE things are what counts, the big, brilliant ideas not clicking so well. Toys, games, new contraptions for amusement parks and things for the kitchen pay the dividends regularly and quickly. It is only in the last decade or so that we have seen fortunes made by the young men who turned out the autographing camera and the ice cream pie.

John Fitch, with the steamboat, struggled for years, to fail and to die on the verge of success. And Samuel F. B. Morse went through a long siege of discouragement and hardship before he proved to the doubting world that words could be sent in signal over the wires.

Fickle fortune has her other moments, too. She smiled on the Swedish chemist Nobel in a peculiar manner. Nobel is popularly associated with the peace prize he established, rather than as a pioneer in the invention of high explosives. He cut his finger one day while at work in his laboratory and, to stop the flow of blood he dipped a piece of guncotton in alcohol and daubed the wound. As he watched the film hardening, there dawned upon him the secret of compressed gelatin.

A more recent case has to do with ethyl gasoline. The inventor in this case had an idea that if he colored gasoline it would put an end to motor knock. That wasn't so, of course, but he stuck to his task and, seeking out a chemist, asked for some dye which would color kerosene. The chemist had nothing available, but suggest offhandedly that if the inventor wanted to color kerosene, iodine would do just as well as the next thing. Meigs, the inventor, mixed his kerosene with iodine and struck gold, for that was the first step which led on to ethyl.

When we were having that discussion about technocracy last year, it was C. F. Kettering, the great automotive engineer and inventor, who gave, as one of the most potent arguments against the new idea, the statement that the human race would never standardize or come to the robot stage as long as there were thousands of things yet to be found which would revolutionize methods of living.
